When Aimee Saves a Soul

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHEN the world knows about the baseball series it begins paying attention to the campaign. You may know a nation is doing well when half its citizens are more interested in baseball than in a national election.

A month ago, Mrs. Annie Newberger lost her son, drowned trying to save a young girl. Yesterday, the mother died of grief. She had walked the floor night after night.

In Chicago, Mrs. Clyde Ryker, only 25 years old, killed her three children and herself with gas.

In Ohio, at Junction City, 17 convicts are dead in a jail fire.

Two American passengers, booked for ocean flight on the German dirigible, have insured their lives for $1,000,000 each. That will seem strange to air travelers a few years hence.

Five thousand feet up in the Pyrenees a fine hotel and gambling room will invite visitors to the tiny Republic of Andorra. The smuggling business has been bad, Andorra wants automobiles, new furniture and other luxuries, and has sold out to the gambling gentlemen.

American visitors to Biarritz will take money to the mountain republic and bring away interesting impressions.

The virtuous will sigh. But the gambling and traveling will open the eyes and ears of the Andorrans, forcing thought upon them. Perhaps good will come from evil.

Germany is building the two fastest steamships in the world, five days from New York to Southampton. Germany's ocean airship will take you from New York to Berlin in 60 hours, or 36 hours in bad weather. The war did not destroy German enterprise.

"Make a crack or a single move, and we'll let you have it." The speaker was one of four young men, masked, carrying automatics, and interrupting the business deal of Solomon B. Stein and 4 associates, in Stein's diamond emporium, New York city.

Two hundred thousand dollars of diamonds were glittering on soft velvet. More diamonds were in the big safe. Stein opened it, when the bandits beat his head with the butt of a pistol.

Four hundred thousand dollars was the reward of the four young men with handkerchiefs over their faces.

In these days of crime efficiency, wise diamond dealers lock their doors.

Alas, poor horse, the automobile crowds him.

In England, Henry Alexander wagered that he would drive his new Ford car up the bridle path of Ben Nevis, highest mountain in Great Britain. The trip was over 13 inches deep and stones 12 inches in diameter, and it took nine hours for the 4406-foot climb.

The car would never make it and would probably fall over the edge, said the British. So they sent up a pack horse with lunch strapped to its back.

Britishers dislike to miss their lunch.

The car reached the top. As for the poor horse, the London Sphere reports its fate thus:

"A horse carrying provisions for the party slipped over the edge of a steep incline and fell to its death in the glen, hundreds of feet below."

The old cry, "Get a horse," is heard no more.

Thirteen thousand tried to hear Aimee Semple McPherson's first sermon in London. Only 16,000 could crowd into Albert Hall. And, according to reporters, "only a few dozen were converted."

Only a few dozen? How much would those few dozen have suffered during their first ten billion years in hell fire had not Miss Aimee snatched them from the burning?

To realize the importance of even one, permanent, guaranteed conversion of the Aimee McPherson kind you need a head for figures.

Suppose a demon stuck his pitchfork into your back, only once in 10 minutes, but would that amount to in 10 billion years? Not less than 525,600,000,000 separate stabs, not counting leap years. To convert even one sinner is worth Miss Aimee's while.

A poll of the "Who's Who" crowd shows that Hoover is elected. Men and women of Who's Whodom are for the Republican candidate.

Governor Smith's friends will find comfort in the fact that "Who's Who," interesting as it is, does not elect the President. That is done largely by those that are not "Who."

HOPPE STARTS LIFE TERM IN 'SOLITARY' AS POLICEMAN'S SLAYER

Stephen J. Hoppe today pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor, after the jury in Superior Court at Dedham became deadlocked over his innocence or guilt in the slaying of Patrolman Alfred N. Hollis of the Quincy police.

Within three hours he was in solitary confinement at State prison in Charlestown. Forever he will be released from "solitary" and assigned to his life work.

Blase to the end, Hoppe remarked as he was being enrolled in the Ninth future would not agree.

"Nice office."

Hoppe's action in pleading guilty was a stunning surprise to the spectators who filled the packed courtroom and who did not know of conferences going on "behind the scenes" as it became apparent the trial was going against the prisoner.

Hoppe's surprise of all, however, was the news that he would serve more time at home with many half of them, according to reports, insisting that the government had failed to place Hoppe in Quincy on the night of the crime.

ZEPPELIN U. S. FLIGHT IS OFF TILL THURSDAY

When the super-dirigible Graf Zeppelin starts on its epochal flight from Friedrichshafen to New York the representatives of only the Hearst newspapers picture service and newsreel will be allowed aboard—the Hearst publications representatives.

And to get the real inside story of the history-making flight—from the moment the huge ship rises from the hangar in Germany to the landing at Lakehurst, N. J.—you will have to read the Boston Evening American.

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 9 (INS)—Because of the bad weather over the Atlantic the departure of the super-dirigible Graf Zeppelin for Lakehurst, N. J., was postponed today at least until Thursday. Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the flight, had hoped to get away tomorrow.

After studying the meteorological reports Dr. Eckener said: "It would be senseless to cross the Atlantic in this kind of weather."

BROCKTON GIRL DIES IN NIGHT CLUB BEATING

Bessie M. Poole of Brockton, former Follies girl and owner of a vaudeville act which opened in Boston yesterday, is mysteriously dead in New York after being beaten in a night club row.

Miss Poole, who shared a room at the Hotel Dorset with Lillian Lorraine, former theatrical star, died in a private hospital. An autopsy upon her body has been ordered.

Detectives were instructed to question Tommy Guinan, brother of the well-known "Texas" and operator of a night club, and Thomas Downey, manager of the resort.

The dead girl was the daughter of Louis Poole, proprietor of Poole's orchestra of Somerway st., Back Bay, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Bessie Woods of Ormsby. For some

WIN WORLD'S SERIES IN FOUR STRAIGHT

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 9—Third home run hitting of Babe Ruth cracked the hearts of the Cardinals today and gave the Yankees the World Series title in four straight games.

The Babe hit three home runs and equaled his World's Series record.

The score of the final game was: Yankees 7, Cardinals 3.

With a 2-1 victory seemingly in St. Louis' grasp, Ruth opened the ninth on Willie Sherdel in the seventh inning that didn't end until the little southpaw had been driven out in favor of Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Two men were down when Ruth, with two strikes on him, banged out the second home run of the day, and Gehrig followed suit a few moments later.

The "Babe" had a third strike called on him, but the umpires, after a 2-minute discussion, ruled no delivery by Sherdel.

The two tremendous blows and the umpires' ruling spelled the end of Sherdel, for when Meusel singled Willie was taken out and Alexander went in to pitch.

Alex couldn't stop the rush of the Yanks either, for they scored two more runs in his inning and then Durst and Ruth smashed home runs in the eighth for two more tallies.

After two scoreless innings, the Cardinals got away to a flying start in the third, when Orsatti doubled, took third on High's infield hunt and scored on Frisch's sacrifice fly.

Their lead was short lived, however, for Ruth came through with the inevitable in the fourth, when he smashed the ball into the right field stands for a home run.

The Cards went back into the lead in their half of the fourth, scoring a run, when will threes by Koenig and Hoyt enabled Maranville to scure a free trip around the bases.

From then on it was all Ruth.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 9 (AP)—Babe Ruth gathered in three more home runs today, almost to bury the World's series hopes of the St. Louis Birds.

The sun had dawn out of a cloudless sky to make up for the dismal early morning, when rain started its postponement of the fourth game. The early thousands that trooped in, but did not fill more than two-thirds of the outfield stands, were in short sleeves.

FRENCH THREAT TO EXPEL OR JAIL HEARST WRITER

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—Harold Horan, correspondent of the New York American, has been requested to leave France before Thursday because of his connection with the publication through the Hearst News Service of a memorandum covering the Anglo-French naval pact.

The press bureau of the ministry of foreign affairs notified Horan that France had considered him an "undesirable foreigner" and warned him that he might be the object of a decree of expulsion.

The continental edition of the London Daily Mail today printed a statement furnished by the Paris bureau of the International News Service saying that Horan had finally consented to accept a decree of expulsion and thus undertook to leave French soil. He was offered the choice of doing this or of going to Sante prison where he would be detained at the disposal of an examining magistrate. The statement concluded by saying: "The French Foreign Office declines to take any action in the matter."

U. S. ENVOY MEDIATES.

The statement was issued after Norman Armour, who is in charge of the American embassy in the absence of Ambassador Herrick, had twice visited the foreign office in behalf of Horan. Secretary Kellogg had instructed the embassy to take steps to insure that Horan's rights as a newspaperman were respected.

Horan said he had been detained by the police for seven hours yesterday and only released after he had signed a report of a cross-examination on how he had obtained the memorandum. The press bureau of the ministry of foreign affairs asserted that Horan had not been arrested, but had simply been requested to appear to explain his connection with the document.

Horan claimed he was driving an automobile in the Rue de la Paix when five bicycle policemen surrounded the car and forced him to the curb. A plain clothesman then ordered him to drive to the prefecture of police.

SHUT OFF FROM LAWYER.

While he was examined there he was not allowed to communicate with a lawyer, the embassy or his office. He said an official told him that if he refused to reply he would be incarcerated in Sante prison and proceedings would be instituted which might lead to a five-year prison sentence.

Horan said that the memorandum in question, which contained private instructions to French diplomatic agents, was handed him by William Randolph Hearst, in the course of a luncheon, with the request it be cabled to the United States. He added that Mr. Hearst had since telegraphed that he assumed entire responsibility for the document's publication.

Neither France nor Great Britain has yet authorized publication of the naval agreement or the correspondence which led to it.

Horan's Own Story of Arrest and Grilling

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN
Universal Service Special Cable

Paris, Oct. 8—At one o'clock in the afternoon I came out of my office in Rue De La Paix, and jumping into my little two-seater car of popular make, I proceeded to join William Bird, president of the Anglo-American Press Association, for lunch.

Gliding along, I reached the corner opposite the offices of the New York Times, in Rue De La Paix, when suddenly, and without warning, my car was surrounded by a swarm of bicycle police.

REQUEST DENIED

At the same time a high-powered limousine pulled up alongside my car and a uniformed man jumped out.

He leaped on the sideboard of my car and asked me in French if I were Harold Horan.

Upon receiving an affirmative answer, he immediately got into my car and ordered me to drive without delay to the prefecture of police.

By this time hundreds of the lunch hour crowd gathered around the scene and traffic along the street was held up.

Almost speechless at this Wild West manner of being held up on one of the main thoroughfares of Paris, I hesitated a moment and inquired if I could not communicate with my office or home

This was denied me and in emphatic tones I was again ordered to drive on.

At 1:15 o'clock, still surrounded by bicycle police escort, we arrived at the prefecture of police. Here I met police secret detectives and was taken to a private room where I was forced to identify myself.

Again, I was refused permission to communicate either with the American Embassy, my office or my home.

For seven hours, until 8 o'clock at night, I was kept a prisoner. During most of the time I was under grill as to where I obtained the information and documents leading to the disclosure of the France-British naval agreement.

Fortunately, Carlisle MacDonald, correspondent of the New York Times in Paris, had been on the street corner in front of his office when my arrest took place.

Not allowed to reach me by the cordon of police on bicycles, he immediately communicated with Frederick K. Abbott, Paris correspondent of International News Service.

IS THREATENED

Abbott tried vainly for seven hours to get in touch with me. He telephoned the foreign office, the prefecture of police and the Paris secret service.

All refused to give him any information as to where I was, declaring that they knew nothing of me.

All this time I was in a little room watched by half a dozen police gendarmes who were deaf to my appeals to communicate with friends. During the evening I was visited by Police Commissar M. Robin. He proceeded to question me.

For one hour and a half I was grilled as to the means by which secret donuments came into my hands.

I repeatedly asserted that they were not stolen and produced a message from William Randolph Hearst allowing he approved my sending the text of the treaty.

Nevertheless, the commissar continued to grill me, declaring that I was responsible and liable under the French law to five years' imprisonment for stealing state documents.

Finally, he said he was not satisfied with my story and that I would be held indefinitely.

Finding that protest was useless I asked whether I would be allowed to communicate with anybody during the time I was held.

To this he again replied in the negative and continued questioning me.

FORCED TO SIGN

The interview was suddenly interrupted by M. Robin being called to the telephone in another room.

In about fifteen minutes he returned and stated that he had been talking to the prefecture of police, and the latter told him I was to be allowed my freedom on one condition.

That condition was that I sign a document to explain the fashion by which the text of the secret agreement had fallen into my hands, and also that I would abide by the order of expulsion which the French government had already made out against me.

Unable to communicate with anybody, and breaking under the strain of seven hours' detention, I finally consented to sign. No sooner had I done so, however, than I was also forced to make verbal agreement that I would leave France Thursday.

At my protest, the commissar said he would use his influence to make it a temporary expulsion only. He phoned the prefecture of police, who also pledged himself to intervene with the ministry of foreign affairs.

No specific length of time was given as to when I might be allowed to return. "Indefinite," was the only answer of the commissar.

At 8 p. m., seven hours after my arrest, I was allowed my freedom.

Returning to my office I found a delegation of American newspapermen awaiting me.

I am now hiding in Paris, afraid to go home for fear that I will be escorted out of the country.

Kellogg Demands French Probe Holden Detention

Washington, Oct. 9 (INS)—The French foreign office has been requested by the State Department through the American embassy in Paris, to investigate and submit full information on the detention of Harold J. T. Horan, Universal Service correspondent, by the Paris police, it was declared at the department today.

Secretary of State Kellogg has taken a personal interest in the matter, and is closely watching the developments, it was said.

The department is withholding further action pending a report from the embassy.

"French Document 'Fuss' Proves Need of Ending Secret Treaties"—Hearst

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—William Randolph Hearst today issued the following statement in connection with the detention in Paris of Harold J. T. Horan, Universal Service Staff correspondent:

"I do not see why the French government should make such a ridiculous fuss over the publication of this secret agreement with Great Britain, unless there is something in the agreement which they are ashamed of and do not want the people of the United States to know.

"I think the people of the United States are already fully aware of the attitude of France toward this country, and the disposition of France to make any combination it can in opposition to the welfare and prosperity of this country.

"In fact, I think the publication of this document in the Hearst papers tended to clear the atmosphere and to relieve France of a suspicion in the minds of the American people that the contents of the document were worse than they actually are.

"The American people are opposed to secret diplomacy. They realize that secret diplomacy was largely responsible for the recent great war, and they feel that it will be responsible, if persisted in, for another great war.

"I think it might be wise for France to realize that if her machinations and her secret diplomacy should involve the world in another great war, as they are very likely to do, she need not again count on the assistance of the United States to rescue her from disaster."

HOPPE GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE AFTER PLEADING GUILTY

No explanation was made of Hoppe's plea. It was generally believed that, knowing himself guilty, he did not wish to risk a second trial at which a verdict of guilty in the first degree would have meant the electric chair.

Even if acquitted he would face the likelihood of long prison terms in other states for past offenses.

The youthful defendant, whose career as a burglar, safe-breaker and convict with three prison escapes on his record, stamped him as a desperate criminal, was the coolest person in the courtroom when the jury filed in.

Asst. Dist. Atty. William F. Kelley moved that the jurors be inquired of and the clerk asked the foreman if they had agreed on a verdict.

"No," was the foreman's answer.

"A disagreement may be entered," said Judge Keating.

The prosecutor then revealed Hoppe's admission of guilt in the slaying by addressing the court with these words:

"It is my understanding that the defendant desires to plead guilty to murder in the second degree."

HOPPE PLEADS GUILTY

Judge Keating nodded his agreement, and Hoppe, who sat seated in the prisoner's cage, four deputy sheriffs close at hand to guard against the possibility of an attempted break for freedom, was forced to listen again to the reading of the indictment charging him with the killing.

"Do you wish to change your plea?" Hoppe was asked by Clerk Robert Worthington.

The alacrity with which Hoppe responded was startling. He bounded to his feet and stepping to the front of the cage said, "I do."

"What is your plea?"

"Guilty—second degree."

The defendant by this time was leaning on his left elbow, which was resting on the edge of the cage, and was folding and unfolding his hands nervously. This nervousness passed from him quickly.

A few minutes later he was sentenced by Judge Keating to spend the rest of his life in the State prison at Charlestown at hard labor. The jurors were excused and Hoppe was manacled and led back to Dedham jail, from which, later, he will be transferred to Charlestown.

Patrolman Alfred F. [illegible] married and father of [illegible] girls of school age, was slain just before daybreak on October 4, 1927, while attempting to trap a yegg who had opened the safe in the Pill Bros. hardware store on Hancock st., Quincy.

Hoppe, a native of South Boston, was then at large, having escaped from the Vermont state prison, where he was serving 14 to 16 years for burglary. Previously Hoppe had escaped from the same prison and from Maine state prison.

Laudenau which was government said he suffered when shot by Prison Guards on the occasion of one of his escapes figured in the government's case, witnesses testifying that a man with a limp was seen near the place of the Quincy murder.

But this testimony did not convince all the jurors, nor did the fact that, according to policemen, bullets similar to the one that killed Hollis were found in Hoppe's suitcase.

Hoppe tried to escape from Dedham jail shortly after he was placed on trial, and two truscies were accidentally killed by a guard while helping to overpower him.

He insisted he was not in Quincy but in Hartford on the day of the murder. His former sweetheart, Helen E. Bradshaw, testified for the government that he was not in Hartford, but her answers were so confusing that the effect of her testimony was weak. She admitted lying on the witness stand.

A girl who said she lived in South Boston remained in the courtroom most of the night awaiting the verdict. She denied that she was Hoppe's wife. With women who testified to living for a time in South Boston, but admitting an overpowering interest in the outcome, a handful of spectators remained in court all night.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN DEATH OF 2 LABORERS

Charged with manslaughter in the death of two laborers at the Sears, Roebuck building, Back Bay, in April, George A. Nichols of Surrey st., Brookline, as assistant superintendent of the construction company, was bound over to the grand jury today in Roxbury court.

Luciano Fresco of East Boston and Vincenzo Ciaccio of the North End were killed when the third floor collapsed and dropped a concrete hopper on them. It was disclosed that Judge Ahern, who conducted the inquest, found Nichols negligent for not ascertaining that the temporary flooring would sustain the weight of concrete hoppers and wet concrete.

ant st., Chelsea, cuts on legs and bruise over right eye.

Edward H. Thayer, motorman, minor cuts.

Three passengers who left the scene in automobiles without giving their names.

CONTROLS USELESS

The trolley car was bound from Everett station to Woodlawn and was turning in Elm st. at Glendale park when it crashed into the truck. Dube, the truck driver, said he tried to swerve off the track but the wheels would not leave the rails.

The front vestibule of the trolley car was smashed in. Motorman Thayer narrowly escaped being crushed, while Dube was trapped in the cab of his truck, escaping by the rear window.

Passengers, jolted from their seats, made a rush for the rear door but the collapse of the front part of the car had caused a short-circuit which rendered the door controls useless.

PANIC IN CAR

The crossed high-powered wires started a fire and a large amount of metal was fused by the intense heat.

Smoke began to fill the car and the passengers, becoming panicky, smashed the windows and crawled out.

Joseph Angelo of Springvale ave., Everett, a passerby, was the first to aid them. Firemen from the nearby station of Engine 3 also rushed to the scene and rendered first aid so that none of the injured had to go to hospitals.

ance here and more of unorganized robber bands, the movement has spread like wildfire," the letter said, "and has now become just such a Mohammedan rebellion as has on several occasions in the past century laid waste the province and decimated its population.

"From reports already in from the country districts the known massacred exceeds 200,000. A stream of reports is coming to the committee telling of villages pillaged and burned and those inhabitants who escaped being without food or clothing."

The China Famine Relief, the organization which made public the letter, called the International China Relief Commission in Peking asking an investigation and advice as to the practicability of forwarding relief from New York.

The province of Kansu is one of the most isolated provinces in Western China, communication with it being extremely difficult and primitive.

The province was the scene of a disastrous earthquake in May, 1927, and the last available estimate placed the number of dead at 50,000.

Quincy Man's Nose Grazed as Joist Falls 9 Floors

If Ernest A. Mitchener, 50, had a prominent nose or a bulldog chin, he probably would be dead as this is written.

The nose of Mitchener and the chin of Mitchener, who lives in Wood st., Milton, and who is vice-president of the Pill Bros.' hardware Co., were grazed today by a two-by-four joist that hurtled down nine stories from the new Granite Trust Building in Hancock st., Quincy.

Mitchener was passing the building when the joist was picked up by a 50-mile gale and swirled into the air.

It ended its fall by barely skinning Mitchener's nose and chin. Otherwise Mitchener escaped injury.

Girl, 10, Puts On Dress She Stole and Goes on Shopping

A 10-year-old girl, in company with a girl of 11 and another of 14, today filched a dress in a Lynn department store, went to the rest room, donned the dress, tucked the ever-length into her bloomers, put her own dress over the purloined one and then went back to shopping with her companions.

However, the dress was missed and the youngsters were suspected. A woman clerk investigated the garments of the girls and found the missing garment.

Because of the girl's youth the store management refused to press a charge and the three girls were taken home by a policeman.

Hollis of Quincy, shown between Court Officers Lynch and Caldwell after pleading guilty to second degree murder and receiving life sentence in Dedham court. His admission of the killing after the jury had reported a disagreement in his case was a surprise to spectators in court. It is said he made the plea to escape a second trial and possible first degree verdict that would send him to the electric chair.

CASH GIFTS OF $281,000 IN BARRON WILL

Specific cash bequests of $281,000 were among provisions in the will of Clarence Walker Barron, financier and publisher, filed today in Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham.

In addition, the will, made in November, 1925, disposes of large holdings in real estate and valuable securities.

The largest specific bequests are two trust funds of $100,000 each, set up for Jane Bancroft, a granddaughter, and Hugh Bancroft, Jr.

The largest legacy is included in the "rest and residue," left to Jane W. Bancroft.

H. Wendell Endicott, a son-in-law, is named executor of the will.

INVITE CITY COUNCIL TO REVERE SCHOOL MEETING

With the intention of exposing what he termed the "don't care, rule or ruin" policy of Mayor Walsh toward the public schools, J. Vincent Murray, chairman of Revere School Committee, invited the City Council to sit in tonight at the regular committee meeting.

"Concerning the Mayor's statement," Murray's letter says "that it costs $35,565 more this year than last to educate the same number of pupils or less, it is absolutely false, inasmuch as the amount granted by him and the City Council up to the present time exceeds last year's appropriation by only $1447.62."

CURLEY FLAYS PROHIBITION AS 'FARCE'

Prohibition is a farce throughout the nation and is recognized as a farce in Boston by the police, Mayor James M. Curley declared today at the daily Democratic rally in Young's Hotel.

"Should Gov. Fuller officially recognize the existence of twelve speakeasies in Charlestown," he told a crowd of 1,500 in the rally room and dozens through the amplifiers before whom other hundreds were listening in the street.

"Commissioner Wilson's battle in prohibition squad does not help the Union Club or the Somerset Club or the dear old B. A. A. But it swoops down on tobacco stores, drug stores and restaurants, where the liquor is not much worse than that sold in the former.

"The raids are becoming less frequent now, as election gets nearer, and are headed toward Chinatown. Such a change is easy to understand, for the Chinese are not allowed to vote."

The former mayor, speaking of Hoover, said:

"I notice that Herbert Hoover is now expressing a willingness to endorse the development of Muscle Shoals.

"If the Harding and Coolidge administrations have done nothing for eight years what guarantee have we that Hoover will lift a hand for the benefit of all Americans rather than the Power Trust?

"Hoover must know all about the Power Trust, for it has taken one of his former secretaries to spread its propaganda—and it is paying him $25,000 a year."

Another speaker at the daily noon rally was W. T. A. Fitzgerald, register of deeds.

RECORD EARTHQUAKE IS NOTED AT HARVARD

An earthquake of considerable intensity, calculated to have had its origin 1300 miles from Boston, was registered last night on the seismograph at Harvard Observatory at Cambridge.

The tremors began to be recorded at seven minutes past ten o'clock and the instrument showed they continued for two hours.

Mexico dispatches tell of a quake that rocked Mexico City and nine states of Mexico, injuring five persons and doing much damage. And it is presumed this is the one recorded at Harvard.

CALL OUT RIOT SQUAD TO KILL MEDFORD DOG

An early-rising or a late-homegoing dog pulled out practically the entire night side of the Medford police department early today after attacking a milkman and two policemen.

When the racing hordes of pursuing policemen were unable to find a vital spot in the fleeing dog with their revolver bullets, riot guns were brought into play and the animal was killed in front of St. Joseph's Church.

John O'Leary, 22, of Eastern ave., Malden, the milkman, was attacked while delivering milk at Otis at. and Central ave. He beat off the dog and it fled into the darkness.

Fifteen minutes later Patrolmen Brown and Cronin, on duty in Medford sq., were attacked by the animal. They beat it off and attempted to shoot it, but the dog ran down Main st. to Mystic Valley parkway, to South at., to Main st., back to Medford sq., through High st. to St. Joseph's Church.

The chase that started with two policemen ended up with the whole department and most of the neighborhood aroused.

The owner of the dog is being sought.

Janitor Burns Self to Death in a Furnace

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 9 (AP)—Based on a note in which he wrote of his intention to take his life, a verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury investigating the death of C. D. Ambert, 70-year-old Elkhart grade school janitor, whose body was found in the school furnace.

The jury decided that bloodstains found about the furnace room were made by Lambert, who, it is believed, cut his hand in breaking a window to the basement. He had left his keys at home.

After saturating corncobs in the furnace with kerosene, the jury decided, Lambert crawled into the furnace and set fire to them, dying of suffocation. His body was badly burned. Lambert was formerly mayor of Elkhart.

BLAST BARES 6 STILLS, RUM

A mysterious explosion and consequent fire in the ell of a small Peabody tannery today revealed the presence of six large stills and hundreds of gallons of moonshine in the demolished ell.

According to Peabody police, the tannery is owned and operated by Leon E. Monnier, Hancock st., Salem, and the ell was built by him at the request of John Miller of Boston, who said he intended to use it for the manufacture of lacquer.

A guard has been placed over the scene of the explosion by Peabody police and they have begun a search for Miller to question him.

SWEDISH PRINCE COMING TO U. S. FOR A WEDDING

Fr. Hoff, a favorite in the Mission Church parish, was drowned while swimming off West End, N. J., September 25. The church was thronged at the requiem mass and the crowd of mourners overflowed down the steps into Tremont st.

ZEPPELIN READY TO START FOR AMERICA TOMORROW

Is Mrs. Mildred Champe, to Moore, who telegraphed to Commodore Eckener an urgent appeal that she be taken whoever else might have to be refused. The commodore, who is not at all ungallant, remarked:

"I've no more space for either men or women. I have no steerage on this ship, and the cabins are all full."

The Graf Zeppelin is practically all clear today for America. Like a phantom barge laden with treasure, with the future aerial archway between Europe and America spanned and made permanently navigable, the big airliner glided silently into the spectral green lighted hangar at the end of a four and a half hours cruise—the airship's fifth flight—the final test before leaving for America.

"She is all right for the big flight now," jubilantly remarked Capt. H. C. Flemming as he stepped from the control cabin and the huge doors at both ends of the hangar closed. "I ran her with two engines and I ran her with three to see what speed she would make in each case.

"The test was satisfactory in every respect."

Ten experts from the Zeppelin works were on board to make various tests. The takeoff was at 1:30 with a load approximating that with which we expect to start on Wednesday for Lakehurst.

"It was an unusually perfect launch," exclaimed Comdr. Rosendahl of the Los Angeles, in admiration we stood together watching the great ship soar.

Commodore Eckener and Staff Capt. Lehmann were so snowed under with office details on the eve of departure for America that both remained on the ground, and sent the Graf Zeppelin up under Captains Flemming, Von Schiller and Wittemann.

As though conscious of her freedom in the air and the power of her wings the big leviathan seemed unwilling to come down when dusk fell. Three times Capt. Flemming brought the airship above the landing field in the early twilight before he could get her down where the landing crews could reach the landing lines with which she was pulled in as if reluctant.

The air strata on the ground had suddenly become very cold and Capt. Flemming did not want to waste hydrogen gas by pulling the valves.

MORE FUEL ADDED

Some additional gas and fuel were put in, and a few hours later all baggage was on board. The end of fthe day will find her ready for Commodore Eckener's command:

"Hock for America."

Dr. Eckener is not planning on a daybreak start Wednesday. He explained:

"I want the officers and crew to have a good sleep the last night before we start. I'm not figuring on getting off before eight o'clock in the morning."

As he looked at the latest weather chart, the old "hir dog" frowned and shook his head dubiously, commenting:

"I'm afraid we won't be able to take the northern route."

There was a last moment storm on the Graf Zeppelin's commander, of persons requesting, appealing and demanding a place aboard Germany's silver ship of the air for the flight to Lakehurst.

One Socialist deputy in the Reichstag came all the way from Berlin to convince the Commodore that he could give no greater proof that the Graf Zeppelin is a ship of peace and goodwill than by taking even at this late hour a young Socialist woman as a passenger, and at the same time taking the petitioning member of the Reichstag also.

KING'S FRIEND TO FLY

Eckener has other troubles, too. Several champagne firms are fighting among themselves as to who may furnish the Graf Zeppelin with free champagne for the American flight.

Enough beer has been offered to fill all of the benzine and benzol tanks aboard the ship. Admirers also are offering, or sending in doves and carrier pigeons which they declare would be proper mascots for the Graf Zeppelin on the trip to Lakehurst.

Others are asking testimonials for various things, while artists are asking Dr. Eckener for sittings and photographers request him to come out of his office just for a moment so that they may snap him.

Another passenger was added to the list of those here and ready for the flight with the arrival of Col. Herrera, technical head of aviation in Spain and a personal friend of King Alfonso. He is one of the leading directors of the newly organized Zeppelin line between Spain and the Argentine, for which gigantic hangars are being built at Sevilla before we start. I'm not figuring

13 PASSENGERS FOR OVERSEAS ZEPP FLIGHT

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 9 (AP)—Last minute preparations for the departure of the giant dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, on a flight to the United States proceeded swiftly today.

Although no definite announcement was made regarding the probability that the dirigible will start tomorrow, the dirigible's mails for the United States were closed this afternoon. The weighing in of baggage also was started, each passenger being allowed approximately 55 pounds.

During the trip the Graf Zeppelin will send on a wavelength of 900 meters and 1070 meters and will receive on 1425 and 588 kilocycles.

SMOKING CUT OUT.

A provisional list of passengers, subject to further simplification, was made public today. It includes Robert Reiner of Weehawken, N. J., a textile industrialist, and Frederick Gilfillan, an American resident of Lucerne, Switzerland.

Gilfillan, who is a smoker, was startled when he was advised by the correspondent today that smoking was prohibited aboard the Graf Zeppelin. He declared that had he known that he would not have engaged passage or at least would have begun a tapering off period a month or two in advance.

VON WIEGAND ABOARD

Other passengers are Karl H. von Wiegand, American newspaper man; Lady Grace Drummond Hay, English society woman and writer; Robert Hartmann, cameraman; Rolf Brand, journalist; Prof. Ludwig Dettmann, an artist; Fritz Klotfel, a pen and ink artist; Theodore Kaltenko, another artist; Hans Meyers of the UFA Film Company; Count Bradenstein Zeppelin, son-in-law of Count Zeppelin; Herr Grezesinski, Russian minister of the interior, and Maj. von Brandenburg, aviation chief of the ministry of transportation.

W. B. Leeds of the American tinplate family also is listed as a passenger, but his participation is doubtful because of illness.

Bar Civil Aircraft From Zepp While Touring U. S.

Washington, Oct. 9 (INS)—An order was issued by the aeronautics section of the Commerce Department today that no civil aircraft would be permitted to fly closer than 1000 feet to the new German Zeppelin when that ship tours the United States.

This precaution was taken to guard possible accident, either to the big balloon or civil aircraft. The order does not apply to military and naval aircraft which will accompany the craft on its cruise in this country.

ZEPP TRIP WILL SUCCEED, SAYS ROSENDAHL

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 9—The Graf Zeppelin's flight to America "should be easily accomplished."

This was the expert verdict given today by Lieut.-Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl of the Los Angeles, as he witnessed the final touches being given the giant air liner.

"The Graf Zeppelin has demonstrated that she is a worthy ship and her preparations are important factors in airship construction and operation," continued Comdr. Rosendahl to me.

"Her contemplated flights to the United States should be easily accomplished and the employment of this ship for overseas mail and express and some passenger service will be an important step in establishing the rigid airship permanently in the field of transportation.

BIGGER CRAFT LATER.

"More than this, the successful completion and operation of the Graf Zeppelin represents victory for that comparatively small band of men who, being able through constant and experience to visualize the future of the airship in the light of recent and promised developments, have never lost faith in the project.

"Many problems in addition to those of a purely technical nature confronted these men and, therefore, all the more credit belongs to these able and persistent successors of Count Zeppelin. It has been a pleasure and a privilege to have associated with these men whose story should be an inspiration to others confronted with difficulties.

"Their unselfish motive has been to give to a waiting world an instrument whose value is now more generally appreciated. At the present moment the Graf Zeppelin is the largest airship in the world, but it is well recognized that the growth in size of airships must continue in order to realize more fully the potentialities of this type of carrier.

"Another year will see two British airships—much larger even than the Graf Zeppelin—augment the realm of transportation, but a further increase in their size must continue logically, step by step, even beyond these.

PROGRESS IS SLOW.

"There are, of course, related problems other than the purely constructional features which must be solved to make airships more capable of providing their maximum value. Such problems are not being neglected and we shall soon see marked progress in this direction as well.

"Nevertheless further experimentation on a full scale in this field of auxiliary features must continue hand in hand with new construction.

"One has only to study the history of any proven type of carrier to appreciate that the airship project also is entitled to its necessary years of development before we can expect perfect performance."

LADY HAY DESCRIBES NEW THRILLS ON SKY MONSTER

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY

Only Woman Aboard the Graf Zeppelin on Its Coming Flight From Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 9—A flock of seagulls lent the Graf Zeppelin their wings yesterday the more gently to land a precious burden of mothers, wives and daughters of the officers and crew of the huge air liner who made their first trip in the silvery Leviathan.

In 36 hours time, that same mammoth of the air will carry away their sons, husbands and fathers on the eagerly anticipated journey to America.

Dr. Eckener, rigid disciplinarian though he is, was delighted to spring a pleasurable surprise for the patient sisterhood of the Zeppelin town, who ordinarily suffer all the pains—social privations as well as limitations of the small town of Friedrichshafen, which is little more than a village—without the compensating gains of sharing with their husbands the privilege of frequenting the fascinating sheds and workshops.

This is not to mention the delights of riding the clouds in the juggernaut of the air, which dictates the destinies and rules the lives of the hundreds of families of Friedrichshafen.

FIRST TRIP FOR WIVES

Many were the fair passengers who had never before made an airship trip. Astonishing as it may seem, little Frauiein Eckener, the great commander's pretty daughter, had never made but one trip prior to this one.

The extent to which the privileges of yesterday's trip was appreciated can be gauged by the instinctive rush of many in the desire to participate in the flight, followed immediately by voluntary sacrifices of renunciation in favor of the eager young people or the older ones.

The gray-haired Frau Eckener sent her little daughter on the final test spin, and Frau Lehmann gave her place to the mother of Navigator Scherz.

Swimming in the golden sea of sunlit autumn air, now floating lazily like a giant, gleaming porpoise, now nosing hither and thither with a phosphorescent sheen of tropic oceans, breaking up a rosy cloud over the glassy lake, the Zeppelin offered the vision of an unforgettable perspective of their little world below to the 10 gallant women who for long years of economic anxiety and uncertainty have not been so far removed from the frettful cares of everyday life.

GULLS BLESS SHIP.

The trip lasted four hours with Capt. Flemming commanding. And, as if in graceful tribute to the gallant band of women of the Zeppelin town, a large flock of silvar-gray seagulls circled round and round the wingless monster following its last maneuvers to the shed.

"So they bless the airship," a seawise philosopher remarked. "Seagulls only follow prosperous ships. They augur security and a safe return."

Zepp Expected to Visit Spain, Then South America

Seville, Spain, Oct. 9 (AP)—Graf Zeppelin, German airship, is expected to come here in direct flight from Lakehurst, N. J., after its voyage to the United States from Friedrichshafen. The dirigible will stay at Seville several days and make a flight around Spain, returning to Seville for the first direct flight from Seville to Buenos Aires.

Reservations are already being made for the South American voyage.

Giant Zeppelin May Sail Over West Indies

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 9 (INS)—It is possible that, after reaching Lakehurst, N. J., Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, will take the Graf Zeppelin for a cruise over Cuba and the West Indies.

This belief is based upon the fact that he advised some of his friends among the passengers to take "summer clothing" with them, indicating the cruise may be extended from the United States into a southern zone over the Caribbean.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

WIDOW DIES IN 12-STORY LEAP

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Arthur H. Stillwell, widow of the railroad builder, who died two weeks ago, jumped to her death today from her apartment on the 12th floor of a West 52nd ave. building. Her body landed on the roof of an adjoining structure.

Mrs. E. W. Robb, Mrs. Stillwell's sister-in-law, and her husband were in the apartment at the time. Mrs. Stillwell, according to police, left a letter addressed to Mrs. Robb.

Mrs. Stillwell's husband, who died on September 24, was a railroad builder and a former president of the Kansas City, Pittsburgh & Gulf Railroad and other lines. Mrs. Stillwell was about 68 years old. She was despondent over her husband's death.

Zeppelin in Fine Trim for Voyage to America

Friedrichshaven, Oct. 9 (INS)—Experts who have gone over the Graf Zeppelin since the final trial flight pronounce her in readiness for the long journey to the United States.

The motors have proved their worthiness and the aeronautical authorities are satisfied that the new "blue gas" will prove a most satisfactory fuel.

Dr. Schreiber, Prussian Secretary of Commerce, who was a passenger on the trial journey, was delighted with his experience. So were a number of other notables on board.

LOS ANGELES IN RETURN TRIP

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP)—Refueled and restocked with foodstuffs, the navy's giant dirigible Los Angeles left here today on its way back to its home station at Lakehurst, N. J.

The announced route of the 43-hour trip lay by way of Denton, Tex.; Ada and Tulsa, Okla.; Erie and Paola, Kans.; Kansas City; Burlington, Ia.; Chicago; South Bend, Ind.; Toledo and Cleveland; Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

A member of the crew estimated that with the end of this trip the dirigible will have been seen by 40 per cent of the population of the United States.

SMITH OFF FOR INVASION OF SOUTH

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 9—Four weeks from today the greatest electoral army the country ever saw will march to the polls to make the big decision.

With these four active weeks ahead of him and much traveling and speaking still to do, Governor Alfred E. Smith sets out from Albany today on the precipitancy of the second of his major campaign tours.

Leaving New York city tomorrow night he will face south—into Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee, territory that Democratic presidential candidates of other years have not considered it necessary to bother about.

Those states have been famoring for speeches from the Democratic standard bearer. He will make a personal appearance in Dixie to satisfy the demands of the local leaders, but his only speech of the week has been reserved for Louisville, Ky., next Saturday night.

There, on the border line between North and South, he will speak of his tariff views. The whole southland, the border country and, in fact, the entire nation will be in his audience, via the radio.

His first bow in Dixie land will be at Richmond, Va., Thursday morning; he will arrive there at 9:15 a. m., for a short stay before proceeding on into North Carolina. He will visit Raleigh at 1 p. m., Greensboro at 7 p. m., Salisbury at 8:30 p. m., and Charlotte at 9:50 p. m. His stay in each place will be short and the activity probably will be confined to hand-shaking and doffing the familiar brown derby.

He will pass out of North Carolina Thursday night and cross over into Tennessee. He is due to arrive at Chattanooga at 11 a. m. and spend three hours there, saying at 2 p. m. for Nashville, where there will be a stop of similar duration. The schedule calls for his arrival in Louisville at 10 a. m., Saturday.

Governor Smith will be accompanied into the South by three Democratic notables, who were not with him in the West, Rep. Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, ranking Democratic member of the appropriations committee, and one of the fiscal authorities of Congress; Norman H. Davis, Under-Secretary of State in the Wilson administration, and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, one of the famous Langhorne sisters of Virginia, who knows the South and southern women.

Mrs. Smith and their daughter, Mrs. Emily Warner, will be the other women members of the party.

Record Smashing Vote Seen in N. Y. Registration

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Indications that New York city in November will poll a record vote for all time were seen by political observers today on the basis of the first registration day.

Reports from the five boroughs showed that 270,254 persons registered last night, while in 1924 the total for the first day was 190,536. Women were largely represented.

Registration by boroughs follows:

Manhattan, 77,498; Bronx, 46,596; Brooklyn, 96,183; Queens, 42,438; Richmond, 7,539. Registration will continue all week.

Hoover for Government Control of Muscle Shoals

Washington, Oct. 9 (INS)—Herbert Hoover stood committed today to governmental operation of the $100,000,000 Muscle Shoals project for agricultural research purposes and the manufacture of fertilizer.

Hoover specifically declared he approved the Coolidge administration's recommendation that the project be dedicated to agriculture. He declared the power developed at the project, over and above that necessary for the manufacture of fertilizer, should be "disposed of on such terms and conditions as will safeguard and protect all public interest."

The Republican nominee made his position on Muscle Shoals clear after an hour's conference with members of his "board of strategy." He declared he stood for governmental ownership and operation of Muscle Shoals. In effect, Hoover approved the so-called Jardine plan, which dedicated the project to agriculture, but which was rejected by Congress last spring.

Obregon Killer Hopeless

Mexico City, Oct. 9 (INS)—In the belief that he will be executed for the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, Jose de Leon Toral has requested that his body be buried alongside that of a Catholic priest who was executed by a firing squad for alleged revolutionary activities.

HOOVER TO GIVE CURE FOR MILL TROUBLES

By ARTHUR HACHTEN,
Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 9—Herbert Hoover in his address at Boston, Monday night, will present a definite plan for remedying the depression in the textile industry of New England.

Realizing that the hard times in the cotton textile mills, despite the Republican tariff wall, have made it difficult for his campaign forces to hold the state in line, the Republican standard-bearer plans to analyze the textile situation, it was said.

He believes that a direct avenue to better times in the industry is elimination of waste in manufacture and distribution with greater diversification of product.

Increased competition from the South in textiles has been a factor in New England's waning activity.

But he will warn that wholesale reduction in the tariff, letting in heavy imports from abroad, would be fatal not only to the mills of the North, but also the South.

He will stress the importance of a protective tariff for other industries in New England as well as the entire country.

Hoover has practically completed his Boston address. He read it in print today, altering it here and there before giving it his final approval.

Eight Dead in Balkan Clash

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 9 (INS)—Eight persons were killed and five seriously wounded in a clash between the residents of the villages of Gradisten and Kopaces.

Natural Beauty Again Fashionable in Paris

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—The beauty specialists are again working with and not against nature.

Bizarre makeup, with unnatural colored powders, done-over eyebrows and exotic lip colorings are demode, say Paris beauty merchants. Several of them make the definite statement that natural beauty is best and "if you can't be natural and be pretty be pretty in a natural way."

As long as Summer lasts dark powders will be permissible on the dressing table. But as soon as Winter weather has removed a reasonable amount of summer brown beauty specialists are expecting the current to set in an opposite direction. Then they will supply the makings for pink and white complexions.

Fewer cosmetics and a better skin under them is the present working principle. Beautiful skin requires little or no makeup. While the specialists make a tidy harvest from the sale of powders and rouges, the basic income of their industry is in the manufacture and sale of creams, tonics, skin washes and massage materials. They foresee an increase and not a decrease in their profits by the return to naturalness.

RAID GAMBLING GAME IN LEGION QUARTERS

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP)—Texas Rangers raided a room in the St. Anthony hotel, headquarters of the American Legion convention, early today, closed a gambling game in progress, required the assistant manager to sign for the professional equipment found, and locked the room. As far as could be learned no arrests were made.

WISCONSIN IN MUDDLE

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9 (AP)—Old in the ways of political independence, Wisconsin continues to keep her sister states interested and puzzled, even in a year when insurgency has become commonplace.

More than ever before, Wisconsin politics in 1928 is like a home-made house which has been remodelled year by year by many carpenters. At the moment further alterations are under way, and the workmen themselves seem hesitant to predict whether the house will be facing east or west, November 3.

A fleeting glimpse of the chief architects of the state's political destinies shows the young Senator La Follette, heir to his father's leadership, running for re-election as the Republican nominee on a platform that favors beer and the McNary-Haugen bill, and saying nothing about Smith or Hoover; La Follette's Democratic opponent withdrawing in his favor; his Republican co-leaguer, Senator Blaine, refusing to support the party's presidential nominee; a reconstituted Republican state organization, headed by a gubernatorial nominee who won over La Follette opposition, seeking to rally the state's tremendous Republican majority under the Hoover banner.

LEGION PARADE DRAWS CROWDS TO SAN ANTONIO

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 9 (AP)—Through flag-draped streets of this southwestern city, at whose nearby training camps and army posts many of them first heard the terse command of "attention" more than 10 years ago, 20,000 Legionnaires prepared today to march in review to the accompaniment of martial music from 100 bands.

The parade, feature and sole business of the second day's program of the 10th Annual American Legion Convention, was the manner that promised to bring attendance to its peak. Adding to the 60,000 distant visitors estimated to be here now, hosts of south Texas residents poured into the city today to witness the events.

More than three hours it was estimated would be required for the marchers to pass one of several re viewing stands erected near Texas' shrine of patriotism, The Alamo, for Gen. John J. Pershing, Secretary of War Dwight Davis, Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, Maj.-Gen. Henry T. Allen, commander of the 90th Division in France, and who later was in command of the Army of Occupation on the Rhine, and other distinguished visitors.

Two thousand wounded veterans were given vantage points to view the pageant. Mothers, wives and sisters of the legionnaires had positions in the line of march.

The march was to climax scores of impromptu and informal parades that have been going on almost continuously since Sunday. Impatient at the serious business of waiting in review, detached units of seeking soldiers have organized but hourly to parade the streets ...vied for banner marching ...its.

38,756 HORSES WERE WATERED BY M. S. P. C. A.

The M. S. P. C. A. during the summer of this year watered 38,756 horses, according to the report of President Francis H. Rowley, issued today. The season opened late in June and closed September 15.

Officers of the society traveled 21,701 miles, investigated 761 cases, examined 1577 animals, made 16 prosecutions, secured 14 convictions, took 77 horses from work, and put to death 1059 small animals.

JAIL FIRE DEATH TOLL MAY REACH TOTAL OF 20

Junction City, O., Oct. 9 (AP)—With a total of 20 prisoners missing, all of them believed dead, and 27 injured, work of recovering charred bits of bodies from the smoking ruins of the dormitory of the Ohio penitentiary brick plant continued today.

Identification of the mutilated remains was practically impossible, so completely had the flames done their work.

HOOVER LEAD BOOSTED IN N. E.

TOPS AL IN BAY STATE AND R. I.

The lead established by Herbert Hoover over Governor Smith in New England, increased today to a total of 9242 votes, in the presidential straw poll being conducted by the Boston Evening American.

Both candidates are bending every effort to capture Massachusetts and Rhode Island, where the straw vote shows a slight lead by Hoover over Smith.

The above two states are without question going to be the battleground during the next month of a fierce political struggle between the two candidates, for the combined 23 electoral votes, the straw vote indicates.

The Massachusetts straw vote follows:

Hoover, 19,382; Smith, 18,244; Hoover's majority, 1,398.

The Rhode Island vote:

Hoover, 6,498; Smith, 6,209; Hoover's majority, 289.

An interesting feature of the straw poll in Massachusetts is the women's vote in which only 471 votes separate the candidates. The women's vote to date follows:

Hoover, 4,467; Smith, 4,016; Hoover's majority, 471.

In Rhode Island the race for the women's vote is much closer than in this State. The women have given Hoover 1239 votes to 1196 for Smith, or a Hoover majority of 33.

NEW ENGLAND VOTE

The vote of the women throughout the New England States is as follows:

	Hoover	Smith
Maine	1,343	389
Massachusetts	4,467	4,016
New Hampshire	1,137	695
Rhode Island	1,239	1,196
Vermont	1,223	431
Totals	10,028	6,927

Hoover's majority, 3,101.

The total vote of New England:

	Hoover	Smith
Maine	5,372	2,727
Massachusetts	19,382	18,244
New Hampshire	5,987	2,965
Rhode Island	6,498	6,209
Vermont	4,337	2,439
Totals	41,726	32,484

Hoover's majority, 9242.

Take the women's vote in Massachusetts. Hoover is running 773 votes behind the Coolidge vote of 1924. On the other hand Smith is 1812 votes ahead of the Davis figures of four years ago.

In Rhode Island, the situation is almost the same. The women in 1924 gave Coolidge 305 more votes than they give Hoover today. Smith is 317 women's votes ahead of the total of Davis.

STATES DOUBTFUL

The straw vote indicates that as the day of election draws near, Massachusetts and Rhode Island are still in the doubtful column.

Hoover still continues to hold his strength in the smaller towns of Massachusetts. There is no question but that Smith has made inroads in many of the smaller sections where Hoover is supposed to be strong, the straw vote indicates.

This is also true of Rhode Island. Smithfield, because of the industrial villages, may go Democratic this year, above the straw vote.

Richmond, one of the smallest towns in Rhode Island, will be counted for Hoover, the straw vote indicates. But the vote given to Governor Smith will undoubtedly be greater, than that given to Davis in the election of 1924. President Coolidge carried the town by a vote of 437 to 100.

In 1924 Coolidge carried Narragansett by a vote of 485 to 134 for Davis. Smith sentiment, according to the figures of the straw vote, is quite strong.

FAVOR HOOVER

The small towns in Massachusetts, those that are in Hampden, Franklin and Berkshire counties, are leaning towards Hoover, according to the tabulation of the straw vote. This is also applicable to some parts of the Cape counties, and also to Essex county on the North Shore.

Throughout the northern New England states, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, while the vote has increased slightly for Smith, Hoover manages to keep a step ahead of the New York executive, so that they may safely be said to be Hoover's in the present straw ballot.

SAYS TIME HAS COME FOR G.O.P. "LICKING"

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Partly because of belief that Herbert Hoover is less friendly to participation by the United States in the activities or the League of Nations, Conrad Hobbs, Boston wool merchant and self styled Independent in politics, will vote for Alfred E. Smith for president.

Hobbs declared in a letter to the Democratic State committee that he also thinks the New York Governor has a more genuine interest in the welfare of the citizens as a whole and that the time has come when the Republican party needs a "licking."

He charged that the G. O. P. has grown corrupt in many places and the "best remedy is to turn the rascals out."

PLAYING BOTH ENDS

"It seems to me that Smith has taken a more courageous stand on several issues than has Mr. Hoover," wrote Hobbs. "The Republican party is playing the old game of both ends and the middle. I am tired of this equivocation. I think that prohibition is a failure and I do not believe we have yet arrived at that high stage of civilization under which it can be made successful.

"I certainly agree with Gov. Smith on the position he has taken regarding Nicaragua and I also believe that in foreign affairs he will be inclined to pursue a more liberal policy than will Mr. Hoover in spite of Hoover's greater experience in this field.

"Governor Smith in his speech of acceptance, spoke more than once in glowing terms of President Wilson and there is no doubt but that his greatest achievement was the founding or the League of Nations. Although the endorsement of the League is taboo in both parties at the present time, still I feel that Mr. Smith would be more sympathetic toward our participation in the League activities than would Mr. Hoover.

INDEPENDENT VOTER

"You asked me whether I am a Democrat, an Independent, or a Progressive. I hardy know what I am. I should say Independent. I was born and bred a Republican and often vote the Republican ticket, especially in state affairs, but in the last two national elections I have voted Democratic. I guess that makes me an Independent."

An appeal to all residents of the State, eligible to vote, was made today by Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic State committee. He reminded those who have not yet registered that the last day for this important duty is a week from tomorrow. Because of one of the greatest last minute rushes in history at the registration places expected on that day, he warns of disappointments through not being able to sign up before the bell rings at 10 p. m.

William S. McNary of Brighton, has withdrawn as an Independent candidate for Congress from the 17th district. He had filed papers for both the long and short terms.

Late today, the G. O. P. candidate for United States Senator, B. Loring Young, and the head of the State ticket, Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen, make the first leg of their invasion of the western part of the State.

They will speak at rallies in Leominster, Fitchburg and Clinton, the home district of United States Senator David I. Walsh.

While in Stockbridge the following day, they will be luncheon guests of Congressman Alan T. Treadway of that town. There will be gathered the Republican leaders of the district.

The western tour will end on Saturday in time for the candidates to appear at big rallies in Lynn and Salem.

POLICE SEARCH FOR MISSING YOUTH

Relatives of 17-year-old James Call of 183 Cottage st. have appealed to the police in an effort to find the youth, missing three weeks today. The boy left home without explanation following a slight disagreement with his folks over employment. When he left he was dressed in a black suit with a pencil stripe, black shoes and a cap.

time she had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Kelliher of 230 Belmont ave., Brockton.

According to the police, the girl was injured in Tommy Guinan's club, Chez Florence, at 117 West 48th st., during the height of revelry Saturday night.

While scores of merrymakers looked on, the Brockton girl, who had protested against the apparent mistreatment of another guest, was struck viciously in the face by an official of the club, police say. Miss Poole staggered back with blood gushing from a broken nose and cut lips, and her escort, Joseph L. Whitehead of the Hotel Drake, Park ave., went to her assistance.

ESCORT ALSO ATTACKED

He was also beaten by an attache of the club, as was his brother-in-law, according to the police. Blood streaming from her nose and mouth, Miss Poole was taken to the apartment of Miss Lorraine, former Ziegfeld star, an old friend with whom she had been staying during the latter's convalescence from a recent appendicitis operation.

The injured girl was in great pain, and Dr. Harry Gilbert of West 55th st., the surgeon who performed the operation on Miss Lorraine, was summoned.

The surgeon ordered Miss Poole removed to the Park East Hospital in 82nd st., early Sunday morning, where her temperature began to rise. Monday she lapsed into coma and died at 5:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Before becoming unconscious police say she told a number of friends the name of the man who struck her and begging them to see that he was arrested. The name was turned over to the police.

According to the dead girl's friends, she was beaten because she objected to the manner in which attendants of the Chez Florence were applying smelling salts to Robert Nelly, "orangeade king."

PROTEST STARTS ROW.

When the attendants smeared ammonia on Nelly's face the Brockton girl warned:

"Don't do that; you'll burn him." The blow is alleged to have followed.

Tommy Guinan, brother of the celebrated Texas Guinan, who is now on the coast following her indictment by a federal grand jury in New York for selling liquor, was said by those present to have been in the group surrounding Nelly, who made a fortune out of orangeade stands. Guinan is one of the owners of Chez Florence, his partner being Charles Wagner.

After her death Miss Poole's body was taken to the Plaza funeral chapel, 49 W. 58th st., where Daniel Coughlin, undertaker, was preparing it for burial when police detectives interfered and ordered the remains to the morgue. Asst. Dist. Atty. Ferdinand Peccora, who had been apprised of the facts at midnight, had ordered this action by the police.

LILLIAN MOURNS FRIEND

According to the temporary death certificate, signed by Dr. Gilbert, death was due to shock resulting from the blow.

Miss Lorraine, heartbroken at the death of her friend, who had hurried from Brockton to be with her during her illness, said:

"I was so much better Sunday that I assured Bessie she would be perfectly safe in leaving me. She was a picture of health and good spirits when she left my apartment."

Mr. Whitehead, who dined with Miss Poole at Dinty Moore's restaurant before going on to the Chez Florence, also spoke of his companion's excellent appearance of health.

The night club where the alleged assault occurred, is one of the most popular on Broadway, boasting a bar, and with Tommy Guinan as one of its feature attractions.

Much concern is being expressed for Miss Lorraine, to whom the death of her friend proved a serious shock.

Miss Poole was born in Onset 31 years ago, and for 10 years was with Ziegfeld's Follies, having gone on the stage at an early age. For the past four years she has had her own act, but for a year has not appeared in it, devoting herself simply to directing it.

Miss Poole made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Kelliher, Mr. Kelliher being a former city official of Brockton, and was with them from Labor Day until the time Miss Lorraine became ill.

At that time she hurried to New York to be with Miss Lorraine, expressing her intention of returning for the Brockton Fair, which was held last week. Several nights during the run of the fair the Kellihers received a telephone message from Miss Poole to the effect that she would be over.

The next they heard was when Miss Lorraine telephoned last night that Bessie was ill. Mrs. Kelliher left at once for New York and her husband is waiting deails.

NAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK PRESIDENT OF CHINA

Nanking, Oct. 9 (AP)—Chiang Kai-Shek, who was commander-in-chief of the Nationalist forces in the Chinese civil war, was elected today President of the National Government of the Chinese republic. The selection was made by the central executive council, whose 44 members have been the chief governing force of the Nationalist administration.

The new President is not only a member of this council, but is also a member of the Nationalist Government council, and has been chairman of the administrative board which has supervised the eight ministries, or Government departments.

RED CROSS IN HOPE FOR MORE FLORIDA AID

West Palm Beach, Fla., Oct. 9 (AP)—Decision not to make a second Red Cross appeal for Florida storm sufferers, despite official prediction that Florida's portion of the $5,000,000 relief fund would be reduced considerably by heavy demands from Porto Rico, was reached at a conference of national and local Red Cross officials.

"We have decided to push the first appeal in the hope that the $5,000,000 asked for will be much over-subscribed," said A. L. Shafer, disaster director for the national organization.

Fresh reports of increasingly serious flood conditions in the Everglades caused Mr. Schafer to proceed to the area on an inspection trip.

Highways leading from the relief headquarters here to various outlying points in the Everglades, where food and supplies are needed, are almost impassable.

FRANCE SETTLES WITH CHINA NATIONALISTS

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP)—A Havas dispatch from Shanghai says that an agreement between France and the Nationalist Government in China has been signed settling the Nanking incident of 1927. The settlement is similar to the agreements reached with Nationalist China by the United States and Great Britain. The only one of the five countries that protested the incident that has not yet come to a settlement is Japan.

FIND GIRL TIED TO TREE IN CEMETERY

Centerville, Md., Oct. 9 (INS)—Found tied to a tree in a secluded cemetery in a woods near here today Motta Shriver, 16, told authorities she had been attacked by a man.

Enraged citizens were searching the countryside for the fugitive.

Margaret Higgon, 14, on her way to school, heard moans and found the half-conscious girl. After her rescue she became unconscious.

32 NOW DEAD OF BAD RUM; PROBES ON

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—City and Federal authorities joined today in seeking the source of the poison liquor that in three days has taken 32 lives.

Acting under orders from Police Commissioner Warren, police raided 2 suspected speakeasies on the lower East side, in which persons in the city most of the death victims had Samples of the seized liquor were sent to police headquarters for analysis.

The coroner in charge of each of the victims ordered a special investigator with a picked squad was sent out by Maj. Norris to assist the police.

Of the 32 victims of the bad liquor, the response so far, the poison has been apprehended and prosecuted. Instead the distribution is more than a condition of the "bread act and answers to bootleg.

Meanwhile the police continued to pick up suspects. Before a score of the dead had been identified, but death was caused by methanol or wood alcohol.

The law of the land under which a person is charged with a crime is the same as that of the city.

"Drinking is suicide," he said, "but accidental suicide. The ignorant, at least, should be protected as far as possible from poisons. Prohibition is a joke. I invite both Presidential candidates to see the noble experiment of extermination."

Dr. Morris was sure that a flood of poison alcohol had been loosed on the lower East Side and that none of the better and in the better class speakeasies was responsible for the deaths.

It is too expensive for the poor," he said.

Some of the prohibition agents praised the exceptional energy and zeal for results of their efforts to clean up New York.

New YEAST and IRON builds weight quickly. Your own druggist guarantees results— or pay nothing

You don't want to be underweight, no one and always tired an object of pity. Yeast Foam. Start today! Yeast now and put pounds of good flesh on those bony arms, hollow cheeks and scraggy limbs. New ugly lines give way to graceful curves. Feel a new vitality and strength you haven't had for years. Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one — weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The Yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

The yeast is treated with the same kind of iron found in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form the iron is assimilated by the body, making rich red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is treated in this way is it more effective—for iron is needed to bring out the weight building values of Yeast. By this formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

Ironized Yeast comes in cakes or tablets. Two cakes before each meal, or 3 tablets after meals, is the directed way. If you don't get better health, the blood is toned up too because the iron aids strength and gives to the blood carrying the complete and increasing your weight. Ironized Yeast comes only in pleasant-tasting tablets. Safe for children. Iron from mineral, tonic or cause gas or bloating.

Ask the druggist now for a full course treatment. It will prove that you can put on many pounds, or your money will be refunded.

SCORES BANKS FOR BUILDING LOAN RATES

Conditions in the Boston building industry are a disgrace to the building, banking and real estate interests of Massachusetts Charles H. Adams, chairman of the Commission on the Conservation of Life, said today.

The statement was made in discussing the result of the preliminary investigation made by his board, before a hearing given by the commission at the State House in pursuance of an order adopted by the Legislature.

"We have found," said Mr. Adams, "that builders of apartment houses are paying from 12 per cent to 40 per cent for their money during construction period. This encourages drives out many legitimate and honest builders.

"We find construction loans written for short terms bearing high rates of interest from 12 per cent to 24 per cent in addition to advance with a technical agreement as to construction so difficult that it cannot be complied with. The note comes due this before a dozen of a hundred, he interest rate is not all the time for or fail to renew the lender to foreclosure at a loss which he has never seen and a debtor is ruined.

"We find apartment house construction is more popular costing $25,000 pays wealth $40,000 for financing during construction. We find inflated mortgages bearing a bonus of 20 to 25 per cent written for a year, calling for additional bonuses and commissions for each renewal, making the foreclosure of these properties both swift and easy.

HUB BISHOP IN SMITH ATTACK

Portland, Me., Oct. 9 (AP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith's campaign for the presidency of the United States was opened by Dr. William F. Anderson, of Boston bishop of the Boston area of the Methodist Episcopal church, also spoke at the opening session today of the Portland and Rockland district meeting at Pine st. church.

While he mentioned no names Bishop Anderson declared it is "now rum and destruction" when a man's campaign for the presidency is based against the greatest economic and moral reform of the age.

"This man," charged Bishop Anderson, "appeals to a group of people who have lack of them only physical appetite and no regard for law or reform. It is time," he said, "for our nation to be born again. It should be born again between now and November 6."

BETH ISRAEL AUXILIARY OPENS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The Beth Israel Hospital Women's auxiliary membership campaign committee today began its drive, for 10,000 new members.

"The duty of the women's auxiliary is to maintain the out-patient department of the Beth Israel Hospital and it will require from $35,000 to $50,000 yearly," Mrs. I. K. E. Prager, chairman of the campaign committee, told 500 women who attended the opening meeting at the Temple Ohabei Shalom auditorium.

ALL UNCOLLARED DOGS IN MARLBORO ORDERED SHOT

Marlboro, Oct. 9 (AP)—The German police dog that bit two boys here Thursday afternoon was afflicted with rabies, according to word received by Dr. E. W. Read ley, inspector of animals, from Harvard College, where the head of the dog was sent for examination. As a result of this report the police have been ordered to have all uncollared dogs in police headquarters and shot them.

HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER GETS YEAR'S SENTENCE

William Benson of Northam Park, Ashmont, was today sentenced by Judge Pettis of the Superior Court to the House of Correction for one year for running away after he automobile had knocked down Helen Murphy of Mattapan. Benson also was fined $100 each on two complaints for driving so as to endanger life.

ELEONORA SEARS HIKES FROM HUB TO MAGNOLIA

Eleonora Sears, society sportswoman, hiked from her Beacon st. home to Magnolia on the North Shore today just a short stroll for her in view of her Newport to Boston cruise walk. She was unescorted and traveled to leave an hour before record time was made on a way to visit friends. She went by way of Saugus, Lynn and Salem.

U. S. Imports $18,620,150 in Rum From Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 9 (AP)—Canada's exports of whiskey to the United States increased in value from $13,451,432 for the previous year to $18,620,150 for the twelve months ended Aug. 31, while exports of beer and ale decreased in value, it was shown here today in fiscal Canadian trade figures.

During last April, May and June, according to the figures, the United States absorbed the total export of Canadian whiskey—44,868 gallons, valued at $1,619,455. This was a heavy increase over the corresponding period of 1927.

The figures disclosed 1,133,710 gallons of whiskey exported during the twelve months ended August 31, compared with 1,067,214 for the preceding year. The export value of ale and beer was $4,871,916 compared with $5,013,970 for the previous year.

CLERK DEFIES POLITICS BAN

Washington, Oct. 9 (INS)—The Civil Service Commission's order banning political activity by government clerks was defied today by L. H. Wittner, an employe of the navy department.

Wittner challenged the order as unconstitutional and declared he would seek a public hearing before the commission. He announced his support of Governor Al Smith, Democratic candidate.

In effect, he loses his job which he regards as likely. Wittner indicated he might ask Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney, to come to his defense.

2 DIE IN FALL OF 18 STORIES

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Two workmen were killed today when they fell 18 stories from a scaffold into crowded lower Fifth ave.

The scaffolding with its rope broken remained dangling high above the street and pedestrians were forced to avoid it as it swung in the breeze.

The men killed were Harry Lee, 40, and Adam Kuhn, 45, both of Brooklyn. A third workman escaped injury by clinging to the building.

COURT WILL NOT HEAR APPEAL FOR HICKMAN

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Efforts to obtain from a justice of the Supreme Court an appeal for William Edward Hickman, at Los Angeles under sentence of death for the murder of Marian Parker, were abandoned here today, after counsel for Hickman had vainly urged Justices Butler and Holmes to permit the case to be brought up.

Efforts will be made to obtain a commutation or sentence from the Governor of California as the last hope of saving the life of Hickman whose execution date is October 19.

Jerome Walsh of Kansas City and his associate, Richard H. Cantillon of Los Angeles, Hickman's counsel, will leave Washington this afternoon. They have sent a telegram to the Governor of California asking for a hearing.

Are You a Goodfellow? This Man Needs a Job

ARE you a Goodfellow? Here's a real opportunity for you, if you are.

In Somerville lives a young man of 26 years who has been forced through lack of employment to place three of his five young children in charitable institutions. His wife is now confined to a sanitarium in Rutland in serious condition because of tuberculosis.

This man needs a lift and needs it NOW. All he asks is employment in order that he may pay bills for medicine for his sick wife and keep his children together. He does not ask for charity. He has been a private chauffeur but says he is willing to do anything.

The city editor of the Boston Evening American has his name and address and will furnish same to anyone interested in giving him employment.

If YOU want to assist this man call Liberty 4000 and ask for the city editor. He will furnish the necessary details.

LENINE'S COLUMBIA MAY MEET ZEPP HALF WAY

Curtiss Field, N. Y., Oct. 9 (INS)—Apparently determined to make a transatlantic flight to Rome in somebody's airplane, Roger Q. Williams, veteran pilot, was testing Charles A. Levine's historic Columbia today with rumors current he may take off within the next 48 hours.

It was reported Williams, accompanied by Pietro Bonelli, navigator, tentatively planned to take off following the departure of the dirigible Count Zeppelin from Germany for the United States, with the intention of passing the big ship in mid-ocean.

ATTLEBORO MAN HIT BY MOTOR BUS DIES

Attleboro, Oct. 9 (AP)—Joseph Dufuee, 63, a farmer, died at the Sturdy Hospital today from injuries received when he was struck by a New England Transportation Company's motor bus.

Francis P. Gillespie, 31, of Providence, driver of the bus, pleaded not guilty in the district court today to operating so as to endanger the safety of the public and was released in $500 bail pending a hearing October 18.

SAFE LOOTED OF $15,000 AT WEBSTER

Webster, Oct. 9.—Smashing a small safe, thieves stole $15,000 in stocks and bonds from the home of Edward Phoenix, one of the town's wealthiest citizens, police reported today.

The safe was opened with an axe, a chisel and a hammer some time between 2 p. m. and 5 p. m. yesterday, but the police report was withheld.

The loot included bonds of the Vicksburg Bridge and City of Tucuman issues, $1000 each, and miscellaneous stocks.

SPARK FROM WELDING TORCH BLINDS WORKER

A spark from an acetylene welding torch caused temporary blindness of Charles D. McCarthy, 32, of Broadway, Lynn, an employe of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. While he was using the torch yesterday the spark struck one of his eyes, but he brushed it aside. Today he went suddenly blind. At Lynn Hospital physicians said the spark had shocked the optic nerve, but that the blindness would not be permanent.

Atheists Seek Right to Establish Own Radio Station

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Permission for the establishment of an atheist broadcasting station in New York city, or vicinity, high-powered enough to send its message to all parts of the United States, was sought today by the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism.

In a letter to O. H. Caldwell, federal radio commissioner, Charles Smith, president of the association, said such a station would aid in the defeat of "the anti-evolution bill to be voted on November 6 in Arkansas."

CAR LOADING COMPANY FINED ON B. & M. CHARGE

The Universal Car Loading Co. of New York was fined $5000 today in Federal court, and William H. Howe, former Boston agent for the concern, was fined $1000, for alleged misbilling of freight goods. Howe pleaded guilty but the company was allowed to plead nolo. Both were prosecuted by Attorney Arthur G. Cooper of Boston. According to allegations in the case the Boston & Maine Railroad lost $5000 through wrong classifications of freight shipments, the misbilling bringing the defendant concern higher rates from the railroad.

PLAN TO WIDEN NEWBURY ST. OPPOSED

Removal of state restrictions on Newbury st., to allow the street to be widened by eight foot strips on each side from Arlington st. to Massachusetts ave., was vigorously opposed at a hearing today before Asst. Atty.-Gen. Gerald J. Callahan at the State House.

The attorney-general is required by law to find out what would be the effect to the State and to property owners if the restrictions, put on in 1859 requiring 20-foot set backs, were removed.

WILL DONATE LAND

Atty. Arthur G. McVey, representing the Newbury St. Association, told Callahan many property owners have agreed to donate the strips to the city if no betterment charges are made.

Attempts to get a clear division of the 50 odd interested listeners resulted in confusion. Several who stood for improvement held out for the full assessed value of their strips, it taken. Among them were Mrs. Annie E. Robinson of 1 Carre M. Pike, of 268 and 241 Newbury st.

WANTS TO SAVE TREES

Charles S. Butler, Dr. E. G. Bracket, Arthur P. Teele, the latter representing the St. Botolph Club, and Malcolm Lang, a property owner, admitted the street has changed in some sections from a residential to a business thoroughfare. But it was stressed that 3½ blocks are still strictly residential and widening the Massachusetts ave. would entail the removal of fronts of buildings at a considerable expense.

Dr. Brackett said the business coming in is very desirable in character, but a widened street might mean less desirable shops. He regarded the present set back as a great advantage because it "gave us our shade trees."

Teele declared the widening would cause serious alterations in the St. Botolph Club building which might result in heavy damages.

More Than 100 Exhibits

More than 100 exhibitors will have displays at the annual exposition of Bay-State-products-under-one-roof, to be held at the Copley Plaza on October 16, 17, 18, under auspices of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

The lovely complexions you see on the screen—

WHAT charm radiantly fresh smooth skin gives a girl—you know it the instant the close-up is flashed on the screen!

Exquisitely smooth skin is more important for loveliness than anything else, motion picture directors say. Because their skin must be lovely under the cruel lights of the close-up, screen stars guard it very carefully.

Nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap. There are in Hollywood 433 important actresses, including all stars—417 of these use Lux Toilet Soap. All the great film studios, too, have made it the official soap in their dressing rooms.

"I used to say 'it is impossible—one cannot find a soap of the luxury of imported soaps in America!' Then I found Lux Toilet Soap. As fine as the costliest French soap, makes my skin wonderfully soft and smooth."

Greta Nissen

"A star must have smooth skin," declares pretty BETTY BRONSON (Warner Bros.). "Everything shows in a close-up. I find this lovely white soap is wonderful for my skin."

GILDA GRAY, who lends her loveliness to United Artists, says, "Only an exquisite skin can look charming in a close-up. I use Lux Toilet Soap for mine—it keeps it like velvet."

SOCIETY MATRON WORKING FOR HOOVER, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Mrs. N. F. Emmons Opens House for G. O. P. Rally

SINCE SHE ACQUIRED THE right to vote, the feminine of the species has become a merry campaigner. And very intensely so in this year of grace and presidential election, as the day to select the next White House family approaches. Down in the pretty Colonial town of Hingham interest reaches at fever pitch, being kept at that altitude by the clever manoeuvers of feminine political field marshals. Mrs. Nathaniel Franklin Emmons raises her standards and the cohorts rally round, girded for battle. On Wednesday Mrs. Emmons opens her home and the teacup clatter will hush as feminine voters give closest attention to Mrs. Nelson W. Howard's exposition of planks and platforms. The Emmons establishment is spacious. Handsome drawing-rooms and book-lined library lend themselves ever so grandly to such occasions.

EVER SINCE MRS. EMMONS founded the Hingham Republican Club, several years ago, Hingham's feminine members of the Grand Old Party have given keen attention to their political lessons. And very well versed are they at this moment in moves on the political chessboard. Busy matron that she is, and however acute the situation, Mrs. Emmons never deserts her old love, the Red Cross. As chairman of Hingham's chapter, she has been whisking about on the trail of dollars for hurricane relief funds. And whisked many recalcitrant ones that way. And, with it all, she finds opportunity to be a perfect hostess for week-end groups at the Emmons place down on the Cape. And to visit with the Richard Lawrences now and again at Groton; this, of course, before they came to town for the season.

WHILE THE RICHARD LAWRENCES occupy a town apartment midway in Beacon st., their Groton home is taken over by Miss Molly Bocock of New York, who will ride with the Groton Hunt this autumn. Secretarial duties for the Groton Hunt take Mr. Lawrence regularly to Groton, and always he may be found of Sundays at the old Lawrence homestead, where now the Groton Hunt has its club. The historic landmark is eminently satisfying as a clubhouse. Wise ones of the members have caused it to be retained in all its early simplicities. Only the immense stables are new, and those are the most up-to-date things for equine comfortable housing imaginable. Mr. Lawrence and Mrs. Emmons are charter members of the hunt.

WHEN PRINCESS ZENAIDA CANTACUZENE weds with John C. Hanbury-Williams in Washington great will be the manifestation of interest from everywhere. The dark-eyed daughter of Maj.-Gen. Prince Michael Cantacuzene and the Princess, of Washington, follows family precedent and makes an international alliance. The Princess Bertha Cantacuzene relinquished a title derived from Imperial Russia to become Mrs. Bruce Smith. Prince Michael Cantacuzene married Miss Clarissa Curtis, as everyone adjacent to Boston knows, and Princess Cantacuzena Speranski, before her alliance with a Russian Princely house, was a Miss Grant, daughter of Frederick Dent Grant and granddaughter to the Civil War general and President.

UNTIL THE RUSSIAN UPHEAVAL the Cantacuzene-Speranskis lived the glorified life of the Czar's Imperial Court and the feudal existence enjoyed by large landholders in the South of Russia. Court favor and place were theirs and high position in the brilliancy surrounding czars. Now the elders live in Washington; Prince Michael and his Princess make their home in the Windy City; Princess Bertha now is spouse to a Louisvillian, and the Princess Ida becomes a bride in Washington, the city where her great-grandfather once lived in the White House as the Nation's beloved Chief Executive. The wedding day is November 1.

SAPLING SLENDERNESS such as Miss Cornelia Clark's sheathes itself most effectively in the autumn's mode. I really believe that her entire trousseau boasts no more becoming street ensemble than a bright king's blue she wore yesterday. Going a-shopping down Boylston st. was Miss Clark, fiancee of Philip Webster Smith, and a bride-elect of November. Dropping into this and that smart emporium devoted to feminine gewgaws—frocks, hats, jewels, shoes. The little bird says that Miss Clark's trousseau is unusually interesting and lovely, even for the adored daughter of plethoric aristocracy. And the wedding gown is a dream revivified from the mode of yesterday to the great adornment of a to day's bride. Miss Clark and Mr. Smith give their vows and promise in Trinity at what will be one of "the" weddings of the season.

FREDERICK L. DABNEY BELIEVES implicitly in autumn snowstorms. As racing secretary for the Norfolk Hunt's race meeting next Saturday, a snowstorm in the way of entries has dropped on his desk. The second autumn meeting is somewhat the home-grown affair. Local stables furnish the nags that run and local colors mingle barbaric satins in exciting fashion. Pursuers aren't so enormous as to engage the attentions and attendance of far-away stables—but there's no lack of local material, considering the Saltonstalls, Peabody and other strings. And the fun of the race is mainly the sort engendered by neighborhood interests—the Myopia, the Groton, the Norfolk, the Millwood and other hunts are really neighbors.

WHAT WILL BOSTON'S upper crust do now in view of Mrs. Frederick Lothrop Ames' defection from the Hub, to be a winter resident of Gotham. Mrs. Ames' place in Boston's social structure is as permanently established as is the State House on Beacon Hill. When boards are to be made up, and some large and important civic movement needs a sponsor of place and distinction, then is Mrs. Ames' name sought. Long, long ago word went round the town that Mrs. Ames and her daughter, Miss Mary Ames, were to take a New York apartment instead of opening the Boston town house for the winter. Much to the regret of Boston's elect, of course.

NOW THAT THE EXPECTED has come to pass and the New York apartment actually materializes rumor becomes fact and the lively Miss Ames and spotlight. They have been put her distinguished mater move into Gotham's brilliant social ring in a Newport season as usual, in the Ames villa that looks one way onto Bellevue Avenue's green reaches and on other way above the Cliff Walk and over a broad Atlantic. An intermediate season at the beautiful North Easton estate fills the time between summer's dilliance by the shore and the winter's metropolitan rush.

WATCH FOR MYSTERY GIRL

$100 AWAITS PERSON WHO FINDS HER

This is another picture of the masked girl who is touring the shopping sections of Boston each day defying keen eyed shoppers and store employes to detect her. An added clue is given in today's photo, which shows her without a hat.

Wonder if Traffic Officer T-39 at Park and Beacon sts., remembers the pretty girl who told him yesterday she understood he is to be married?

Or if a certain saleslady in Filene's perfume department recalls the girl who tried vainly to buy Mystikum perfume because it was mysterious.

Or if the courteous assistant treasurer of the Union Savings Bank remembers how he smiled at the naive query of an attractive girl as to whether a person must have three endorsers to open a bank account?

These three were not quite sufficiently on the alert yesterday to recognize "the Mysterious Lady from the Silent House," but they, with friends, will be her guests next week at the Majestic Theater, where the Chinese mystery play, "The Silent House," is now showing.

Also a guest of the pretty lady will be the credit manager of Meyer Jonasson's, to whom the mysterious lady told a long story about her San Francisco shopping while asking about opening a charge account.

any of these, excepting the policeman, recognized the mystery lady, he or she would have been $100 richer. Policemen and employes of the Hearst publications or the Shubert interests are not eligible to the money in this game of identifying the mysterious lady from the Silent House.

Again today the pretty girl will be about town between 2 and 4 p. m. She will visit the department stores and subway stations. Watch for her.

All you have to do when she asks you a significant or odd question will be to have a copy of the Boston Evening American in your hand when you say to her:

"You are the mysterious lady from 'The Silent House.'"

Tickets will be delivered to those whom she queries but who do not recognize her.

GIRL KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Portland, Me., Oct. 9 (AP)—An unidentified 18-year-old girl was killed, Miss Ruth Hewey, 21, said to be a waitress of Auburn, was thought to be dying at Maine General Hospital, and Oscar Shapiro, 25, a musician of Leicheater, Mass., received severe injuries when a sedan collided headon with a two and a half ton fruit truck on the West Cumberland cement bridge, State highway, Cumberland, early today.

The dead girl, a pretty blonde with no papers or identification, except a remark by Shapiro that he thought she was from Idaho and was named Hanson, died in the arms of Oscar J. Hodgkins of 44 Saunders st., Portland, who took her out of the totally wrecked sedan. She had a fractured skull.

In order to release Miss Hewey said to be the driver, and Shapiro from the sedan it was necessary to chop away the twisted left hand side of the body.

The truck, owned by the Laconia Transportation Company of Augusta, and driven by Charles B. Merrill, Jr., 26, of West Lynn, Mass., drove the engine of the sedan entirely out of its base and into the tangled mass of wreckage which imprisoned the three victims.

MILL WORKER ATTACKED

New Bedford, Oct. 9—With one former striker stabbed by unidentified assailants, police today descended on radical headquarters in the southern section of the city and made 11 arrests.

Those taken into custody as idle and disorderly persons were said to be radical leaders, and police intimated the Department of Labor will be asked to deport them.

Among those arrested were William Murdoch Augusto Pino, Manual Machado, Andrew Eyk, Helen Dawson, John Rubenstein and Louis Kaminsky.

A quantity of literature, said to be of a communistic nature, was also seized by the officers who made their raid at an early hour.

The arrests occurred just as the leaders were about to start for the mills to picket returning workers and followed the attacking of Samuel Harwood, 55, of 71 Winterville st., a weaver in the Page mill, as he was on his way home from work.

Harwood was cut about the face. He called for help and Antone Botelho heard his cries. Botelho responded and aided Harwood to beat off his assailant.

At least 20 per cent of the striking workers have returned to their employment, according to the employers.

Profit is earning power—less expense.

Earning power of Graham Brothers Trucks has always been high. Expense is low. The difference—profit—is greater with Grahams than with any other motor truck, in the experience of thousands and thousands of truck owners .... And owners invest more than $65,000,000 each year in these money-making trucks.

Now—with 6 cylinder engines and 4 wheel brakes in every size and type and with 4 speed transmissions in the 1¼, 1½, 2 and 3-ton trucks—their earning power is even greater. They are built complete in the correct sizes and body types to fit 96% of all hauling needs.

Whatever your business, whether you sell a service or a commodity—profit is your goal. With Graham Brothers Trucks profits are greater and more certain .... Owners know the definite plus that comes from master builders .... in power .... in speed .... in safety .... in long life .... in low price.

See these trucks .... Ask to drive one.

YEAR SENTENCE IN RUM CASE

Rocco Russo, 21, School st., Cambridge, was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction when arraigned in East Cambridge Court this morning on the charges of keeping and exposing liquor for sale. He appealed and was held in $1000 bail.

According to Office. Normile of the liquor squad, he arrested Russo on Brooks st. on Oct. 2 after seeing him pass liquor to another man.

SEIZE TWO IN TAKING UP FAKE FUNERAL FUND

Charged with soliciting contributions for the funeral of a man who was not dead, Thomas Annella of Arlington st. and Joseph Greco of Abbott ave., both of Chelsea, were arrested by the Nahant police today. According to Chief Thomas Larkin, Greco had in his possession $20 which the two men are believed to have obtained from soft-hearted residents of Nahant.

The solicitors said they were taking up contributions to bury a man who died in Lynn Hospital last night. A sceptical person telephoned the hospital and on being informed there was no death there, notified the Nahant police and the arrest of Annella and Greco followed.

COOLER TONIGHT, IS WEATHER FORECAST

The warm weather which arrived last night is expected to depart when the wind shifts to the northwest this evening. The lowering skies do not hold rain for Boston although showers have occurred in the Lake region, the Ohio Valley States and the St. Lawrence Valley.

Forecast for Boston: Fair, cooler tonight and Wednesday; fresh southwest shifting to northwest winds.

SIXTY BURIED WHEN BUILDING COLLAPSES

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 9 (AP)—Sixty workmen were buried under the debris of an eight-story building which collapsed today in Portich st. in Prague.

Every effort was rushed to extricate the victims from the ruins, but the number of dead had not been determined late this afternoon.

SCOW FIRE MENACES OIL PLANT

The plant of the Mayflower Oil Co. was endangered and firemen were forced to carry lines of hose in row-boats, when a scow loaded with piling caught fire in Chelsea creek, Chelsea, today.

Two alarms were turned in, and aid was sent from Everett and Revere, but the blaze was extinguished by Boston Fireboat 31 which arrived in response to a request from Chief David Hudson of the Chelsea fire department.

According to Chief Hudson the scow caught fire from sparks thrown out by the engine on a nearby lighter moored to the property of the Rendell Bridge Bldg. Corp., on Marginal st., Chelsea, and working on a bridge.

Employes of the Mayflower Oil Co. only 75 yards away, were filling tank cars when the scow, owned by the Smith Piling & Teaming Co., of East Boston, broke into flames. They telephoned an alarm, and immediately on the arrival of Chief Hudson he ordered a second as a precaution.

The firemen were struggling in small boats with hose lines when the fireboat arrived and extinguished the blaze, which was confined to the scow.

URGE NEW PARLEY ON TRAFFIC

So much pressure has been put upon the Boston street commission-ers by critics of the new traffic regulations that there is a likelihood of another series of public hearings to discuss them, it was reported today at City Hall.

If the commission takes this step it will, as stated by spinnatty for Mr. Average Citizen, who never thought it worth his while to attend the hearings out of which the new rules were born, but who has been camping on the doorstep of the commissioners since they were adopted.

Both the commissioners and the disgruntled drivers are far fed up in a mass of confusing technicalities from which they cannot be immediately freed because of the failure of the police department to erect the necessary warning signs clothes to parking rules.

Many truck drivers called at City Hall today for their permits to haul and unload merchandise at the curb in downtown districts, only to be met with the answer that these would not be available till the police acted on the sign situation.

Slugger Victim

HIT BY YOUTH

Mrs. Alice Gager of Lynn, who was hit in the eye by a youth who suddenly assailed her near her home. Police today hunted the assailant.

FLIES 220 MILES IN 88 MINS.

With a southwest wind blowing 80 miles an hour on his "tail," Ned Carrington, East Boston air mail pilot smashed all existing records over the Boston-Hadley field, N. J., course today by completing the trip in an hour and 28 minutes, a distance of 220 miles.

Carrington took off from Hadley field with about 35 pounds of mail, at 7:15 a. m and landed at Hartford an hour and 3 minutes later. Leaving Hartford at 8:17 he sped the remaining distance to Boston in 20 minutes.

Carrington's feat was the subject of good natured banter when he landed at the East Boston flying field.

"Where have you been, Carrington?" queried Pilot "Dick" Mackie, who held the previous record of an hour and 43 minutes over the course.

"Oh, I've just busted a record," Carrington replied.

"I know you have smashed mine," Mackie retorted, "but what in the devil detained you?"

The Amazing Story of a Dancer of the Night

CHAPTER 1.

MAGIC of moonlight and maddening primitive music! Intoxicating perfumes from tropical flowers of the jungle come by wizardry of living flames of ceremonial fires! and supreme element in this strange set were which had ever stirred his senses, the erotic dancing of the young maiden, whose feet fool scarce little jerks and flutter steps of nimbleness went her in a mass of intricate rhythms again and again about the aged high priest, holding the center of that hysterical crowd of natives.

The white man was stirred with a surge of emotion such as he had never dreamed in all the years of his careful wandering life.

The natives had taken up their chanting white more and more of the intimate and powerful the calming of the bewitched old man squatting on his haunches beside his wife with the drum.

The white man from his ancestral vantage in the rear drew his breath sharply and glanced down at his kneeling servant.

It all seemed so unreal so overwhelming that he struggled to regain his normal senses.

"It is a great performance, Fuad Ali," he said with a forced laugh. "I never saw anything like this in Paris or London nor even in the Follies. Some hotter and that girl, why, she'd set Broadway on its ear."

The turbaned one looked up, dazed. "Sahib, I do not understand you. Perhaps you do not understand this. It is what you call living magic. You may never see anything like it again Sahib. Nor may I."

The white man laughed and drew a cigarette from his leather case, lighting it with a trembling hand. As he puffed he puffed his nerves soothed seemed to return.

"No magic about it," he answered. "Just a wonderful, natural born dancing, and it was evolved merely going wild along her. But I wish they'd get through with these party. I'm tired and want to find a cool bed for the night. Tomorrow I want to go tiger hunting if I can get any native beaters to lead to one."

The native, half ashamed of his superstitious awe, struggled to his feet to imitate, as usual, the sahib's every. He laughed weakly. "You are right, of course, Sahib

"THE SILENT HOUSE" PROVES MASTER MYSTERY PLAY

Audience at Majestic Held Spellbound by Gripping Drama

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

QUIET or not, "The Silent House" brought new alchemy to the drama of doubt, suspense and squeals at the Majestic last night. Judged solely by its reaction upon a nervous audience, this drama of Chinese intrigue and horror easily made the grade, although just what it was all about may be set down in the chronicles as something to be considered later.

At any event, "The Silent House" was choked with mysteries of the Far East and, like any good old melodrama of the same standardized brand, the heathen Chinese manhandled very much as deeply dyed disturbers of nocturnal serenity.

Having disposed of two weeks of Thirston and his more or less merry magic, "The Silent House" found a welcome and friendly audience for the Oriental cultism worked into four acts by John G. Brandon and George Pickett. As an opus in villainy, these twin authors turned out an excellent job. Lost papers, desperate pursuits and Oriental devilry supplied the principal ingredients.

If there was any doubt in the matter of sequence, there still were plenty of startling situations, menacing panels and all the rest of the stage's best paraphernalia in mechanized illusion.

As a thriller in dramatic presentation "The Silent House" carried its own shocks. It was a serious drama with all the glittering externals of the almost forgotten Hanlon's Superba.

Somewhere and somehow, the lives of a noble Nordic and a scheming, treacherous son of the land of draconian law made a peaceful avenue. Missing papers of great value figured in the adventure, a stolen token, in the shape of a sacred star from the midrift of a first-class Chinese god, kept the excitement at top pitch.

The play had not ambled through its first act before you knew the Majestic was no place for the nervous. And yet a divided audience shrieked its glee—or misery—while dusk and sinister dread piled hard and fast, one upon another.

The lone woman lass struggled under the burden of feminine anxiety. An English lover wooed her, a clever native of the Hauling Slum coveted her.

The girl, of course, was Incidental; the missing papers and a lost tiara of the grinning idol were the real objects of pursuit.

Kathleen Robinson played the unhappy maiden; she was light and gay, she was depressed and mournful. Seldom has the drama brought forth a more harried heroine.

Vernon Kelso proved himself a lover of determination; a man of the hour, willing and anxious to take up Cupid's most deadly weapons. Allen Atwell and John Nicholson were the principal Celestial Chinamen of virtue and sin. It was an even contest, Nicholson had the more sinister part. Atwell was borne up by audience sympathy.

A mystery play without phantoms, "The Silent House" produced startling and fresh by natural action. It was just good, stirring melodrama, backed by the old reliable, and it's conventional—not to mention a few trick panels back of the mansion's massive mantel.

Scout Warns Eagles That Duke Is Tough Foe

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SPEED, ACCURACY, INTEGRITY — NEWS THE DAY IT HAPPENS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1928

McNAMARA SAYS DUKE IS STRONG

B. C. Scout Expects Eagles to Win, But Only After Hard Battle

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Duke University Boston College's holiday opponent, will bring practically the same club to Boston that defeated the Eagles last fall; an outfit that is able to nudge the Golden Eagle from its present loftly perch in the grid world.

This according to Dinny McNamara, the B. C. scout, who watched Duke down South Dakota on Saturday by a score of 25 to 0. Of course South Dakota isn't one of those wild and wooly teams typical of Western football, but it's a big university and its football team is worthy of the institute.

After playing three periods of close football Duke's superior condition began to tell and it rolled up their margin of victory in the last 20 minutes of play. Condition seems to be Duke's main weapon in grid warfare.

It was the fact that the Boston College team wearied so quickly last fall that let Duke trounce the Eagles in the opener by 15 to 6. And this same physical prowess may mean victory again this fall.

EAGLES TIRED

Coach Jim DeHart's invaders will be playing a team that took a terrific beating just six days previous from Uncle Sam's ruddy seniors at Annapolis. It's obvious that the bangs and bruises received by B. C. will not have entirely disappeared by Columbus Day.

Dinny, who did a perfect job in spying on the Middies, feels that Boston College is in for a first-class struggle but expects B. C. to win.

Duke has the same backfield that walked through the Maroon and Gold as the sun was setting one hot October afternoon last autumn. Safe quarterbacks the eleven with Jankoski at fullback and Hatcher and Hollingsworth at the halves.

Boston remembers this quartet. Especially Jankoski and Bule. Jankoski, a big, burly chap, gave the B. C. line into ribbons on his last visit. And Bule helped him with end runs and forward passes.

STAR SAVED FOR B. C.

Jankoski did not play against South Dakota on Saturday. He received a slight leg injury, and Jim DeHart benched him mainly in anticipation of this week's game with Boston College.

Even without Jankoski the Duke team ran smoothly and Murray, who took his place, looked like a first class reserve back.

The husband, North Carolina, boys, play a hard brand of football; the kind you see in the coal regions of Pennsylvania. Jim Tim Hollingsworth, hostile coach, was once a Pittsburgh star and has installed the football he learned at the Smoky City college in his present job.

Boston College is going through light workouts this week in an effort to recuperate from Saturday's pummeling. There will be absolutely no scrimmaging, nor tackling the dummy. McKenney's team will practice up on the plays, go through the signals and keep "buttered up by daily grass drill.

With the exception of Al Morelli, Boston College will put its full fighting strength on the field against Duke. Zeus Wilczewski was found to be physically fit after an x-ray of his shoulder, while Dr. Godfrey, squad physician, feared was frac, tured.

Morelli is limping about school with a sprained ankle. He may be in the lineup on tomorrow but it seems almost certain that he'll have to sit on the bench while his mates strive for vengeance with Duke.

The entire B. C. team is being worshipped at the Heights. The colleen went mad on the return of the squad and one of the most enthusiastic parties in many, many years was held while the students made "whoopee" over each individual as he was introduced.

GAMENESS WON

Joe McKenney expressed satisfaction but warned of the games to come. John McManmon, line coach, said the victory to the "intestinal fortitude" of the team. "Gameness" as the boys of the club say.

And Al Weston, hero of the B. C. victory, responded to the ovation with one of the shortest speeches on record but one that made a big hit with the boys at the Heights.

"All I can say is that we have a game of a navy," was Al's sermon and he made for shelter, seemingly not as cool and collected before a crowd as he is in a football suit,

Scozza Arrives In Hub Tomorrow

Louis Scozza, the latest Italian find to sensation, known as the Student Prince to Buffalo fans, will arrive in the Hub tomorrow for his impending 0-round battle against Arthur Flynn in one of the feature bouts of the final open-air show of the season of the Argonne A. A. at Braves Field, Friday, Columbus Day afternoon.

YOUNG STARS WHO FLASHED WHEN BIG CHANCE CAME ON GRIDIRON

BERNIE KILROY, B. C.

BART McDONOUGH, DARTMOUTH

This trio showed up well in Saturday's conflicts, which were their first big test. Kilroy played a wonderful game at center for the Eagles against the Navy. McDonough piloted the Hanover eleven against Hobart. And Tom Gilligan was the big noise for Harvard in its first game against Springfield. They should have a great year, with such a fine start.

Ideal Weather for 4th Series Game

It looked like an excellent day for aged and aching soup bones, if any such as that of the ancient Clarence Mitchell or old Pete Alexander are called to the Cardinal colors.

The pre-game slate for this crucial contest, crucial at least for the home club, called for Waite Hoyt and Willie Shreckel to be the starting mound duellists, whether or not they also do the finishing.

CARDINALS ARE FRISKY.

The Cardinals, their spirits revived by a day of rest, capered on the field sprightly before noon for practice, but some of the Yankees had beaten them to it. The Red Birds acted as if they had forgotten or were trying to whistle away those three straight defeats and stop the onrush of the Yankees.

The New Yorkers were fast as confident they would deliver a paralyzing salvo of base hits and make it a clean sweep.

The field dried off nicely under the boiling sun. The bleachers were a glare of white shirts, punctuated by vari-colored parasols, as the early crowd was entertained by the band, led by Al Schacht and supported by Nick Altrock's antics.

GATES OPEN AT 8:30.

There was no wild rush toward the turnstiles when the gates opened at 8:30 a. m. and there was plenty of unoccupied space in the covered left-field stands at noon.

The advance guard of the Yankees, who seemed anxious to get it over with, was the first on the field, led by Tom Zachary and Harry Matthews, the bullpen catcher. Manager Miller Huggins, in multi, took a preliminary survey of the situation two hours before the game.

Shortly afterward Jack Onslow, Cardinal coach, led the home boys out in spic and span new uniforms and the first cheer went up. The extra day of rest gave time for the new outfits to be fixed up. They failed to fit when the players first tried them on Sunday.

The Cardinals shifted their lineup in a last ditch attempt to change their luck, sending Ormsti,* a recruit, to second field in place of Douthit and substituting Earl Smith behind the bat for Jimmy Wilson, whose errors contributed to the Cardinal defeat in the third game. This gave the National Leaguers added portside hitting power.

The Cardinals missed a good chance to break through in the first inning when Andy High got a double on a pop fly that Ruth lost in the glaring sun in left field. Frisch fanned, Bottomley walked, but Haefy hit weakly in front of the plate and was thrown out by Hoyt to retire the side.

CARDINALS ARE FRISKY.

This means that there will be considerable of a battle for the outfield center berth between Webb, who was center on the fresh nan team last year, and Benjamin Tichnor, captain and fullback of the undefeated yearling eleven.

It is expected that Tichnor will start against North Carolina this week-end, but that Gildea will probably start in the first big game of the year against West Point, at the Stadium a week from Saturday.

Tichnor, however, is a player of such ability that it will be exceedingly difficult to keep from winning a place on the varsity team, somewhere along the line or in the backfield.

He may be shifted to tackle and eventually forces his way to a first string job at right tackle, the berth now occupied by Fay Deaver. Only the six-foot-five varsity crew captain and polo star.

It is possible, too, that the lack of other centers, outside of Gildea, may result in Tichnor being kept in the role of reserve pivot man.

Although most of the fans who witnessed last Saturday's 20 to 0 victory over Springfield were impressed by the end sprinting of O'Connell and quarterback Gilligan, two team N players, it now looks as though both of them will remain in the role of subs and will not be promoted.

There is no doubt though that O'Connell and Gilligan will keep on striving for a Hall Columbia in their drive to dislodge the two incumbent veterans from first varsity berth.

As practice started today, Coach Horween planned to give the varsity a severe scrimmage. Also he told the players that he is to give them another scrimmage tomorrow afternoon.

HARVARD JUST MISSED HAVING B. U. GRID STAR

Francis "Crab" Walke, Boston University's star fullback and a real "iron man," might now be holding down a backfield position for Harvard but for a trick of fate.

When Walke graduated from Belmont high school in 1924, it seemed as though Harvard were to receive one of the outstanding schoolboy backs of the year. He captained his high school eleven that season and was chosen for the fullback position on the majority of the mythical "all state" and "all scholastic" teams.

Walke lacked one or two credits to satisfy the entrance requirements at Harvard, and so he enrolled at the De Witt Clinton school in New York.

Glenn O'Brien was captain of the ton, where he was prac'tically a one man football team. He graduated from the De Witt Clinton that June and received the necessary credits for Harvard, but transferred his affections to Boston University in the Terriers during the season of 1925, and it was through his efforts that Walke enrolled at B. U. They were teammates at Belmont high school, and now enjoy the same roll at B. U. for the second year.

Walke was a few days late in enrolling last year and did not report to the varsity until three days prior to the opening game of the season with West Point. He went into that game as a substitute fullback for Sam Winer but showed up so well that he started the next game and has been a regular ever since.

He does everything well and is a triple threat and is reliable, and when the Terriers lack a yard or so for first down "Crab" usually responds with a smash through the line for the necessary yardage. It has been Walke's great punting which has pulled B. U. out of many a tight place, and his accurate passes which have lead up to scores.

This is only Walke's second year at B. U. and he has two more years of varsity football ahead of him as the freshmen rule will not go into effect until next September.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (INS)—The Navy is studying the Notre Dame attack in practice for Saturday's game. Bauer is reporting for practice; he was knocked out last Saturday.

GILDEA IS READY TO REPORT TO HARVARD

By TED LANCH

The Harvard football camp pitched up this afternoon when word was received that Henry Gildea, former Boston Latin school athlete, who is considered the most finished of the eligible centers of the college, is ready to report for the squad for the first time since he was injured early in the season.

This means that there will be consideration of a battle for the varsity center berth between Webb, who was center on the fresh nan team last year, and Benjamin Tichnor, captain and fullback of the undefeated yearling eleven.

It is expected that Tichnor will start against North Carolina this week-end, but that Gildea will probably start in the first big game of the year against West Point, at the Stadium a week from Saturday.

Tichnor, however, is a player of such ability that it will be exceedingly difficult to keep from winning a place on the varsity team, somewhere along the line or in the backfield.

He may be shifted to tackle and eventually forces his way to a first string job at right tackle, the berth now occupied by Fay Deaver. Only the six-foot-five varsity crew captain and polo star.

It is possible, too, that the lack of other centers, outside of Gildea, may result in Tichnor being kept in the role of reserve pivot man.

Although most of the fans who witnessed last Saturday's 20 to 0 victory over Springfield were impressed by the end sprinting of O'Connell and quarterback Gilligan, two team N players, it now looks as though both of them will remain in the role of subs and will not be promoted.

There is no doubt though that O'Connell and Gilligan will keep on striving for a Hall Columbia in their drive to dislodge the two incumbent veterans from first varsity berth.

As practice started today, Coach Horween planned to give the varsity a severe scrimmage. Also he told the players that he is to give them another scrimmage tomorrow afternoon.

Series Sidelights

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 9—This may be the first contest of the World's Series. The others were just games.

Are the St. Louis fans downhearted? Not. The posting for the Cards sounds like the armistice Day celebration, the Democratic convention and the Yale-Harvard game rolled into one.

Sunday the Cardinals in their clean white uniforms, looked as if they had just stepped out of the laundry bag. Today they look as if washed out.

The infield looks as if all the ground hogs in Missouri just held a convention here. Give Ruth and Gehrig a couple of mikiks instead of bats and you'd have a perfect golf course.

Left field looks like Verdun after the seventh day.

Ruth didn't want Huggins to worry about the strain on his injured knee. He told Hug that after every homer into the pavilion he would walk, not run, around the bases to the home plate exit.

Sixty bats in front of the New York dugout. Looks like another shiltaish party.

Loughran Ordered to Box Slattery

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion, was notified by the New York State Athletic Commission today that he must make immediate plans to defend his title against Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo and Lou Lonski, Aberdeen, Wash.

The Philadelphia adonis will be allowed one or two warm up fights before he takes on these challengers, it was decided. The commission ruled that Slattery rates first and Lonski second among the contenders.

The action was taken when Loughran reached the end of a 5-day period on the commission's "sick list," a vacation given him when he reported sick for a match with Lonski two months ago.

Club Titlists Are Eligible for Trophy

St. Augustine, Fla., Oct. 9 — An important amendment regarding eligibility was incorporated here in the conditions governing entry for the second national championship of golf club champions for the Wilfred Travis memorial trophy.

At the same time the dates for this tournament which will be held again over the Ancient Links, were announced by the committee handling arrangements for this new golf classic.

The tournament will be played on the local course for the second year in succession January 5 to 12, next.

Instead of confining the field to current season club champions, it was decided to accept the entries of any previous titleholders of any club affiliated with the United States Golf Association. Thus, the group which competed in the inaugural tournament for the Travis trophy, and the first championship of club champions last January will be eligible to participate.

McGuirk Treasures Victory Pigskin

Capt. Warren McGuirk of the Boston College football team has a new trophy adorning the room in his Arlington home. He has the football that was used in the Navy game and on it are the autographs of every Eagle who participated in the sensational stinking of the Mid die craft.

Warren grabbed the ball at the final whistle and tucked it solidly under his arm. Though a horde of rooters pushed and shoved him to their glee, Warren managed to keep hold of the ball. The autographing ceremony was held in the B. C. locker room yesterday afternoon.

SHERDEL ON MOUND FOR CARDS

Gehrig. Ruth was called out on strikes. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING

Yankees—Lazzeri singled. Dugas hit out a home run to Lazzeri on second base. Durocher went to Bottomley. Lazzeri scored. Third baseman Frisch threw out Pennock at first. NO RUNS.

Cardinals—Douthit struck out. Hafey went to Koenig. Mueller struck out. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING

Yankees—Koenig singled. Mays sacrificed, Hoyt to Bottomley. Koenig to third. Ruth was purposely passed to first. Gehrig was out, Alexander to Bottomley. Meusel struck out. TWO RUNS.

Cardinals—Bottomley struck out. Hafey hit out to Lazzeri. Koenig grabbed Hafey's line drive and threw out Frisch at first. NO RUNS.

Breadon Denies He Will Sell Cardinals

St. Louis, Oct. 9 (INS)—Rumors that he contemplated selling the St. Louis baseball team were denied today by Sam Breadon, president of the club.

I wouldn't sell the Cards for $5,000,000," said Breadon. It had been rumored that he was considering selling the team to Col. Jacob Ruppert, New York baseball magnate, and Huston, former partner of Babe Ruth.

Lynn Elks to Hold Clam-Bake

The first annual Field Day and Clam Bake of the Lynn Lodge of Elks will be held on Revere Beach, at the entrance to the Lynn Yacht Club, on Saturday, October 13, it was announced by the committee in charge of arrangements for this new golf classic.

The tournament will be played on the local course for the second year in succession January 5 to 12, next.

Instead of confining the field to current season club champions, it was decided to accept the entries of any previous titleholders of any club affiliated with the United States Golf Association. Thus, the group which competed in the inaugural tournament for the Travis trophy, and the first championship of club champions last January will be eligible to participate.

Martin Beats Drew in Lynn Battle

Andy Martin of Boston won the decision over John Drew in the main event of the Lynn A. C. bouts at Casino hall, Lynn.

Martin won every round but the 10th in which Drew came on strong back that brought the customers out of their seats.

Eddie Cribbin of New York knocked out George Glaser, Atlanta, in the second stanza of the eight round semi-final.

In the first six-round bout of the evening, Tom Harper, New Bedford, was the winner over Eddie Bowers, South End, while Leo La Tarte, Revere was defeated in six rounds by Eddie Chatelaud of Lynn, in the other six rounder.

100 Games Carded for School Elevens This Week!

SOMERVILLE FACES MEDFORD FRIDAY

By DICK McSWEENEY

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be fateful days for the schoolboy football teams. At least 100 games are scheduled for this four-day period, and those teams which manage to stagger through their engagements with victory in their clutch will have hurdled one more obstacle in their path to the State championship.

On Wednesday we find Jamaica Plain struggling with Charlestown at Braves Field in what will be the first game for both of these aggregations. The B. L. Freshman team plays Huntington School, and Rivers School goes to Roxbury Latin.

A double-header between East Boston and Commerce, and Brighton versus South Boston is scheduled for Thursday, both of these games being played in the Braves ballyard.

On Friday, Columbus Day, there are several games which are sure to bring large crowds to the various football arenas.

MEDFORD VS. SOMERVILLE

Medford and Somerville will clash at Dilboy Field, Somerville, both of these teams will be anxious to win, Somerville especially, because of the fact that the Red and blue has not won from Medford for the past ten years.

Lawrence will take on Andover Academy, Malden will face Melrose, Newton will try to upset Everett; Cambridge Latin will encounter Rindge and Lynn Classical will visit Haverhill.

Mechanic Arts meets Dorchester, and Trade plays English; both games to be held at Braves Field. Peabody journeys to Beverly, Arlington plays at Mystic Valley League game at Winchester, Framingham goes to Norwood, Providence Classical is entertained at Gloucester, Milton endeavors to upset Quincy, Clinton mingles with Leominster, Natick braves to Needham, Reading entertains Stoneham in a morning game, Lexington plays host to Hudson and Hingham contends with Abington.

And there are more: Maynard invades Hudson, Concord meets Braintree in a morning game, B. U. Freshman visits New Hampshire to play New Hampton, Thurber academy bats Barnavon, Thayer Academy will try to stop Country Day, and Nowa high meets Mitchell military school.

BROCKTON VISITS SALEM

Those fans who have lost their fill of football by Saturday will be able to enjoy the popular autumn pastime when the following teams clash: Brockton at Salem, Holy Cross Prep versus St. John's Prep, Dorchester High at Tufts, Boston Latin at Groton, Hebron Academy at Yale Freshman, Pilgrim Academy at Yale Freshmen, Mount Hermon at Brown Freshmen.

St. George's school at Milton Academy, Northfield at Exeter, Worcester at Amesbury, St. Mark's at Middlesex, Tabor Academy at Noble and Greenough, Wakefield at Woburn, Weymouth at Winthrop, and Portsmouth at Nashua.

SCHOOL BOY SPORTS

Coach Dickerman isn't letting his Somerville squad think about their Waltham defeat but he isn't letting up in practice either. The Somerville mentor thinks that Waltham's victory will have a steadying influence on his players and will put them into the right mental mood for the Medford game. Long and thorough practice drills will be in order for the Red and Blue eleven this week as Somerville fans will not be satisfied with anything less than a clean-cut victory over Medford.

Abe Cassin, husky Malden guard, will be out of the game for the rest of the season. Young Cassin was a substitute last year and was counted upon as a good reserve lineman this fall, but a leg injury has hampered his work to such an extent that he gave up football and will concentrate on his school work.

Eddie Lakan, the big Malden tackle has done excellent work against the opponents of the Blue and Gold thus far. Last season he blocked the punt which beat Fitchburg and was instrumental in Malden's other victories.

Coach Holland of Mechanic Arts is getting his charges ready for the fray with Dorchester Friday. The Mechanic gridtacker faked the fight that his boys put up against Brighton last week and feels sure that his team will give Dorchester a busy afternoon.

Connell, Mechanic Arts center, has been doing a fine job at the pivot position this season. His playing stood out in the Brighton game.

Joe Di Pesa, Mechanic Arts halfback by the way he runs back punts. Dever, a sophomore, is being groomed for a backfield position because of his ability to kick and pass. In another year Dever will be a star. A real star. Gorham will see a lot of service this season at one of the halfback berths for Coach Ryan's aggressive tackling and line play, in the early days of the season at least, Coach Holland will put McLellan, 600-yard sprint star, on one of the wings.

POSTPONEMENT IS TOUGH ON DOCTORS

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1928, by International Service

St. Louis, Oct. 8—Our little World Series took a recess yesterday because the local baseball prembuce was saturated.

An autumnal rain came on and the morning found the St. Louis arena as wet as a Manhattan Democrat. The infield, or diamond, was reasonably dry under its pajamas, but the outfield was quite soggy, especially the left field area.

Mr. Ruth might have been able to keep afloat out there on those pontoons of his, but Mr. Gehrig, or Mr. Lazzeri, or Mr. Meusel, or Mr. Bengough, or Mr. Koenig, or Mr. Durocher, or Mr. Pennock, or Mr. Hoyt, or Mr. Moore, or Mr. Gazella, or Mr. Wera, or Mr. Grabowski, or Mr. Dugan, or Mr. Ruether, or Mr. Shocker, or Mr. Thomas, or Mr. Jamieson, or Mr. Wilcox, or Mr. Zachary, or Mr. Hasty, or Mr. Gibson, or Mr. Hargrave, or Mr. Ehmke, or Mr. Bengough, or Mr. Alexander, or Mr. Haines, or Mr. Bottomley, or Mr. Frisch, or Mr. Southworth, or Mr. Mueller, or Mr. Bell, or Mr. Wilson, or Mr. Hallahan, or Mr. Johnson, or Mr. Vance, or Mr. Sherdel, or Mr. Orsatti

Hornsby Thinks Cards Too Meek Against Yankees

ROG SAYS CLUB LACKS FIGHT

Expects Sherdel to Cause New Yorkers Plenty of Trouble Today

By ROGERS HORNSBY
Manager Boston Braves

St. Louis, Mo., Oct 9—A day of rest, when things are blown wide open, often helps a slumping ball club. The Monday rain and the consequent vacation, may bring the St. Louis Cards back a little bit, and enable them to win a game or two from the Yankees, and make this World Series look something like a contest.

The lay-off idea works both ways. It's likely to take the fine edge off a team that's driving along. The Yanks were "hot" in the three games of this series. Being stopped just when they were rushing to clean it up, may slow them down a bit. They know they will win anyhow, so they may not be smashing in quite so hard.

That seems to be the one chance the Cards have. The Yanks are a nonchalant ball club, though, and they have Ruth and Gehrig. They may lose their frenzy, but they always expect to win. Even with a couple of their stars crippled, they are dangerous any time.

CARDS FOUGHT IN '26

That Yanks team looks good for three or four more years, and the National League teams will have to get some fighting spirit to knock them off. The Cardinals beat them in '26, after a tough series, only because they went in and fought just as hard as the Yanks, and were just as hard boiled.

Every Cardinal was fighting for little more than the best of it. That is the only spirit that can down a club that's both good and game. The Pirates last year and the Cards this year have gone into the series too meekly. The Yanks have been the bosses, and have kept the mastery on.

I don't know what will bring the fighting spirit back to our league, unless the players and managers get sore about the spankings they've taken in the last two series. The Cards were a pretty tough team during the last season, but they lost 19 all, evidently as soon as they won the pennant.

Bill Sherdel will pitch, the fourth game, and he always has a chance if he gets any support. But he will be smashed up against Waite Hoyt, and that young man is a great pitcher. He wants to get this thing over with, and so do the rest of the Yanks.

Winning four straight for the second year in succession would be the New York gang a record that should last forever. And I think that players forget the records. We all like them, which is natural enough.

SHERDEL MAY WIN

A good left-hander, as Sherdel is, with control and luck against Babe and Lou, can get away with a ball game, and it wouldn't surprise me to see the Cards collect today. That will be some consolation for the league.

Ruth, in this series, has proved again his real greatness. He has a very bad leg, but he bears down and tears along whenever he sees any chance to get anywhere. His dash for the plate Sunday, and his desperate football slide, upset that ball game. Nobody expected the lame Babe to try to score from second on what looked like a sure double play, but he fooled them.

Players should learn that it's impossible to do the thinking for fighting birds like Ruth, who are great because they take legitimate chances in the pitches and make the other fellows look bad.

As a National Leaguer, I would like to see this series go back to New York for the finish, but as a baseball man, must admit that the Cards will have to perform a real miracle to put that stunt across.

St. Joe's Holds Bouts Again Saturday

St. Joseph's T. A. S. will hold another of its series of amateur boxing tournaments next Saturday night in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin sq.

After two weeks' vacation, the heavyweights will swing into action once more.

The class will be open to all, as will the 113, 125, 147 and 160 pounds divisions, while the 118 and 126 pounds classes will be for novices. Entries may be made with William H. Cuddy, 333 Washington st., Room 315.

COCHRANE TO HUNT IN WILDS

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 9—Mickey Cochrane, of the Philadelphia Athletics, former Boston University star, acclaimed the best catcher in the American league, is to join the party of baseball stars coming to New Brunswick to hunt big game following the close of the World series.

Word was received here from Eddie Collins, who is piloting the party, that Cochrane will replace Bob Shawkey, the ace white pilot of baseball hunting parties, who will not make the trip this fall as he is going to Japan with Ty Cobb's team.

The other members of the party are Denny Bengough, who has been doing all the catching for the New York Yankees in the present world series; Sam Jones, who was the pitching ace of the Washington Senators this year; Fred Hofmann of the Boston Red Sox, who is now at Manager Bill Carrigan's camps in Maine, and Joe Bush.

The party will be guests at a reception in Fredericton on Sunday night and the following day will go to Doaktown on the Miramichi, whence they go 12 miles south into the woods to Hopewell lodge, one of the finest hunting camps in New Brunswick which has been placed at their disposal.

Four Boston men who are members of the club owning the Hopewell lodge are now enjoying a hunting trip there.

McGonagle Hopes to Win From Britton

Jack Britton, the Old Master, holder of the world's welterweight championship for ten years, now in the midst of a comeback campaign which threatens to recover his old title, faces the prospect of going to the well once too often when he stacks up against Jimmy McGonagle of Weymouth in one of the feature bouts of the Argonne A. A. final open air show of the season at Bekwa Field on Columbus Day afternoon.

For, in McGonagle, Britton without doubt, is facing the most formidable foe he has met since starting his comeback campaign, which has proved so successful. And while Britton is still one of the greatest attractions in the fistic game, Hub fans will be on hand to root for McGonagle, who has won 13 straight ring conflicts, since Louis Scozza of Buffalo will meet Arthur Flynn of Lawrence in a return bout. Scozza recently beat Flynn in Providence, in spite of the fact that Flynn had him on the floor twice.

WILSON'S DEFEATS A. SEARS IN MARKET BOWLING

Wilson's cleaned up A. Sears in the Boston Market League last night at the Faneuil alleys, taking all four points with the fine total of 1500.

With Walter rolling for 125 and Horton hitting 113 in the second string, the Wilson quintet also rolled the high single string of 524.

Walter's 125 was the high single of the night, and his 316 took high three string for individuals, so that the Wilson group garnered all the honors for the night.

Cohen-Hogan Act to Play on Broadway

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

While reading a New York paper recently, with a dictionary in the other hand, I saw a note to the effct that Frank Hogan of Somerville, star catcher of the New York Giants, and Andy Cohen, infielder of the same club, had signed to appear in vaudeville.

Some one of the boxoffice boys must have been studying the money returns of "Abie's Irish Rose." Anyway, Frank, the Irishman, and Cohen, the Jew, are to appear before the footlights, or behind them.

Their act will probably go something like this. If it doesn't, this is a pretty good act for them, anyway.

(Frank and Andy, with suitcases, enter hurriedly from opposite sides of the stage. They collide. Frank is about to pull a punch from his hip pocket when he recognizes Andy.)

"Hello, Andy, old boy. Good thing I recognized you. I thought you was one of them wise Broadway guys."

"Why, hello, Frankie, I thought you was one of them Bowery boys, and I was just about to pull a hit and run play."

"Ha ha ha. Well, where ya goin', Andy?"

"Me? I'm goin' home."

"Go am I." We got a few minutes before the train comes. Let's give these Gotham hicks a little entertainment."

"Sure. Let's go.

Frankie and Andy join hands, and sing the following to the air of "The Wearing of the Green."

"O, we didn't win the pennant,
Of course that ain't no news,
But when we do, 'twill be due to—
The Irish and the Jews."

"Well, well, Andy, who was that ball player I seen you with last night?"

"That was no ball player, Frankie. That was a member of the Philadelphia Nationals?

"Ha! ha! ha!"

"I see where Babe Ruth has become a gambler, Andy."

"Babe Ruth a gambler. You don't mean it!"

"Sure, Andy. Didn't he make a lot of money playing with the "Cards."

"Ha! ha! ha! You're good, Frankie. You ought to go on the stage."

"What? Do you think I want to become a big battered and egged man?"

"Ha! ha! ha!"

"Well, Andy, who ya goin' to vote for in the presidential election?"

"Me? I'm votin' for Hoover. He's against 'strikes.'"

"Ha! ha! ha!"

"Who you votin' for, Frank?"

"Me I'm voting for Smith. He favors the 'ball tossers.'" "Ball tossers? Ball tossers?"

(Frank lifts an imaginary flask, and makes a gurgling noise.)

"Oh, yes, Frank. Ball tossers. Ha! ha! ha!"

(At this point, a dead cat appears on the stage. Frank and Andy take one look, join hands, and while the curtain falls, sing:

"It ain't gonna rain no more."

Hot Off the Gridiron

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 9 (INS)—Coach Gil Dobie is using his second backfield, Lyon, Scott, Bristol and Johnson, part of the time in Cornell in practice for the Hampden-Sidney game here on Saturday.

Bethlehem, Pa., Oct. 9 (INS)—Several changes are expected to be made in the Lehigh lineup by Coach Tate, it was believed today. Tate has mapped out a hard week of scrimmage for his charges.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 9 (INS)—Colgate varsity lineup includes many second-team men in practice these days. Gasper and Hart appear in the backfield for Dowler and Gallagher.

ST. LOUIS TOO SERIOUS FOR ALTROCK

By NICK ALTROCK

St. Louis, Oct. 9—The batteries for yesterday's game was the weatherman and nobody else. The Yanks spent the day in batting practice with umbrella handles while the Cards fielded some grounders in the hotel lobbies. The World Serum now stands everything for the Yanks and zero for the Cards.

Outside of Hoyt's game the pitching is very paltocks in this serum. The Cards have used up their staff and it looks like they will blow the last game unless they can lend some quick bow-and-arrow lessons from some old Indian chief.

The fielding has also been as ragged as a bum on a freight car. The only thing did right so far is the batting which I consider very good.

Personally, I ain't choosing up sides. I don't care who wins the World Serum, I don't care who is elected president, and I don't care who endorses the blindfolded cigarettes. I am strictly for fun and amusement at all times and when baseball stops being a sport I will go back to the soap factory.

The St. Louis fans take their baseball a little serious for Uncle Nick and they don't have to be by unless the home team wins. If they figure it out that way then the crying season in Boston must be twelve months long.

I am anxious for the World Serum to get over because I love to be home in the autumn on the front porch watching the neighbors living fly crank their cars.

I admit that I picked the Yanks to win but that was because I figured that there was no pitching staff what could stop them guys from batting any more than you can stop the ocean from being salty.

Schaaf and Payne Battle at Arena

With popular prices prevailing—from 50 cents to $3—a capacity crowd is expected next Tuesday night when Frnie Schaaf, blonde Viking of the ring, clashes with Tiger Jack Payne, heavyweight champion of Australia, in the feature bout of the Arena A. C. at the Arena.

Col Bob McAuley is making a hit with the fans by sticking to popular prices, despite the fact that the bouts are being staged indoors.

The Schaaf-Payne match should be a hurricane. Schaaf is always wrecking forward, always punching, always making the fight. He did that with Pat McCarthy, Harold Mayne, Big Boy Peterson in his last three fights, to win three victories and become once more the most promising young heavyweight in the world.

Star Amherst Back on Injured List

Amherst, Oct. 9 — Although the winners of the tussel with the Bates bobcats Saturday, the Mass. Aggie football team lost a promising halfback in Cy Kimball, who retired with a shoulder injury following a series of gains in the first period. He was counted upon to do much of the Aggie forward passing and his absence from the squad further depletes the small number of backs available.

Other casualties were Addie Carr with a bruised spine and Ray Plummer with a cut under the chin. All the Aggie regulars who got into the Bates game were rested today while those who did not scrimmaged against the seconds.

M. I. T. SOCCER 11 PLAYS N. E.

With only one reverse in so far in the last eleven games, North eastern expects this week to add two more victories and improve its great record.

The Huskies face M. I. T. at Cambridge tomorrow and go to Worcester on Saturday to play W. P. I. Both of these elevens were blanked by Captain Rusty Howard's wreck ing crew last year. The Red and Black banded M. I. T. a 3-0 defeat in 1927 after beating W. P. I. the previous week, 3-0.

The highlight of this season so far was the 4-0 victory over Dartmouth Saturday. The Huskies, who can practice only one hour daily until a floodlighting system is installed at Huntington field, are not in condition to maintain an offense throughout a match, but they can certainly to their stuff in the first half.

Their defense is strong enough to permit them to take things easy in the second half.

In the opener, Northeastern mowed down Fitchburg normal, 7 to 1, and so the team has an amazing scoring total of 11 goals for two games, four more than were scored against them in eight games last year. Capt. Rusty Howard, who booted 11 of the team's 23 goals last year, is again showing his teammates the way, with four markers this season.

Not far behind him is Hal Burton the Roslindale boy, with three. Mario Fiance, a freshman from Fall River, has shown conclusively his right to a place on the forward line by scoring two. Herb Tiffany and Lee Kershaw have a goal apiece to their credit.

Defensively, Tom Melia, the goalie from Worcester, Fred Hess, center half, and Joe Medeiros, Fall River sophomore fullback, have put up a whale of a game so far this season.

Scalpers Scalped on Tickets for World Series

St. Louis, Oct. 9 (INS)—"It's worth thirty dollars, but you can have it for three."

Thus spoke a ticket scalper in St. Louis hotel lobby this morning as he strove desperately to unload a score of $5 tickets for the fourth game of the World Series this afternoon. Here and there a disheartened scalper offered a ducat for $2.50.

PRINCE OF WALES BEATEN BY OUTSIDER AT TRACK

Laudel Md., Oct. 9—After three consecutive victories, Prince of Wales, outstanding handicap horse of the year, went down to defeat at the hands of a rank outsider in the feature stake event at the Laurel track.

Installed as a top heavy choice at the start, Eddie Ambrose, who had the leg up on the Prince, never could overhaul the fast running Knapsack with Weimer in the saddle.

Who'll Fly?

The Eagles C. C. of Roxbury issue a challenge to all 118 pound teams in the State. Team wishing to play should communicate with HARRY FOLEY, Jamaic 1631-M, Boston.

CARENA COURT PLEASES STAR

Karel Kozelub, the Czecho-Slovakian tennis professional who is scheduled to play Vincent Richards at the Arena tomorrow night, practiced today on the new indoor court which has been installed in the St. Botolph street building.

He arrived in Boston from Hartford with Arthur Rudolph, a fellow-countryman who is tennis professional at a Hartford Club. On Kozelub's request Manager George Brown of the Arena has changed the program and the two Czechs will be pitted against Richards and Wm. Ayer, professional at the West Side Tennis Club of Forest Hills, Long Island.

Kozelub expressed himself as pleased with conditions at the Arena. "This court," he said, "is ideal for tennis. The ball bounds true and the footing is sure and springy."

The Czech is a stronly-knit man of medium size with such a powerful forearm that he used the same grip both for forehand and backhand. His forte is back-court play and he is confident that he has enough power to drive Richards into his racquet to discount the aggressive volleying style of Richards.

Change in Brown Line Promised

Providence, Oct. 9—But one possible change—that in the A Team line, to increase the speed of that set of forwards—is contemplated in the Brown team which will face the University of Dayton at Brown stadium Saturday. Head Coach Tuss McLaughry announced at the close of practice today.

The coach gave no inkling of the player who may be elevated to the A eleven, however.

McLaughry gave his squad a set of new plays, which will be used against the Flyers this week and probably against Yale next week, for Brown has a non scouting agreement with the Eli. Much of yesterday's practice session was spent in running through the plays from dummy scrimmages, with verbal instructions being administered.

No changes in the backfield lineup are contemplated, it is said. Coaches will probably have Sam Flora, promising sophomore, to alternate with the brilliant, but somewhat fragile "Ozzie" Nelson, who created a big impression in Saturday's contest.

John Chandler, Brown end who received a broken nose more than two weeks ago, was out yesterday, but during a special workout with nose guard attached. McLaughry also expects to be able to use Ted Anderson, who received wrist sprain a week ago when he collided head-on with another lineman, in Saturday's game. Thrust, Heller and McDonough took part in the drill today and may be ready for play by the end of the week.

Another dummy scrimmage is planned for tomorrow. The squad will get but a only regulation scrimmage session of the week on Wednesday.

Jeritza on Thrilling Thirties

By MARIA JERITZA

How hard it is to realise that a century ago an unmarried young woman of twenty-five was a hopeless old maid. At thirty, married or unmarried, a woman was "on the shelf," so far as youthful charm was concerned, while at forty she donned a lace cap and resigned herself to an old age spent knitting in the chimney corner.

Today, every up-to-date girl looks forward to the thrilling thirties as a period of poise, charm, and joy of living.

"No woman can achieve charm younger than thirty," declares Count Luis de Luza, noted European fashion artist. "Smartness is a process. It requires time and years of practice. . . The European woman does not try to look like a beauty. She prefers to look interesting, chic and smart."

It is true that at thirty the average woman has found herself. She no longer tries to imitate, with less aid of make-up, the complexion and features of a doll baby. She realizes that scarlet lips against pasty white complexion are grotesque. She uses, if she is wise and cosmopolitan, very little make-up, indeed, and seeks to express her own individuality, as well as fashion, in her dress. She has begun to realize that beauty is of the mind and soul and that physical loveliness rests on health of mind and body. Applying this principle to her daily life, she flowers into a bloom of mental and physical charm comparable only to the beauty of the Greek women when Greece was in her prime.

Thirty is an ideal age to marry, for at thirty a woman has grown up mentally and physically and knows the kind of man who will make her happy and round out her life successfully. Modern women, wedding in the late twenties or early thirties, often have vigorous families of children and stay young with them. A certain distinguished physician has fixed on thirty as the perfect age for a woman to marry.

Of course, not all women find their thirties thrilling. It is quite possible to take to the rocking-chair, munch chocolates and decide you are out of the race. But if you prefer to go on living, instead of merely existing, you will keep active mentally and physically, work enthusiastically, eat moderately, and exercise sufficiently to frighten away fat cells and inspire restful sleep. When you feel well and happy, the chances are you also look well.

A woman in her thirties should walk, ride, golf, swim and dance when the opportunity presents itself. She should also tune in for the morning radio physical culture drill or else practice circulation-stimulating exercises like the following each morning before her bath.

Sit on the floor with your legs wide apart, stretched out straight. Relax the muscles of your body and roll it forward in a semi-circle from your hips, letting your out stretched hands slide along the floor. Return to sitting position. Repeat this movement 12 times to the left, 12 to the right.

Do not let yourself slump just because you have passed the flapper period of early girlhood. Every age has its charm. And the thirties are thrilling, lovely, and crowned with romance for the woman who keeps herself feeling an looking her best.

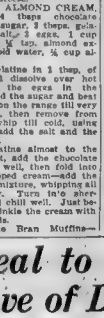
Chocolate Syrup a Big Help, Says Martha Lee

ISN'T time one of your scarcest commodities? I know it is mine and that's why I'm always especially keen about food products of superior quality that are also minute-savers. I'm thinking particularly of a convenient chocolate syrup, richly delicious and adaptable to so many delicious dishes. I can't tell you the brand name here although I can send it to you if you are interested, but I can give you some of the recipes which we recently tried out in the Martha Lee Kitchen with success.



Martha Lee. O—Pacbrach

CHOCOLATE ALMOND CREAM, six servings—2 tbsps. chocolate syrup, 2 tbsps. sugar, 1 tbsps. gelatine, dash of salt, 2 eggs, 1 cup whipped cream, ½ tsp. almond extract, 1 tbsp. cold water, ¼ cup almonds.

Soften the gelatine in 1 tbsp. of cold water and dissolve over hot water. Break the eggs in the double boiler, add the sugar and beat over hot water on the range till very light and thick, then remove from the fire and whip till cold, using rotary beater—add the salt and the almond extract.

Cool the gelatine almost to the congealing point, add the chocolate syrup and mix well, then fold into the stiffly whipped cream—add the sugar and egg mixture, whipping all together lightly. Turn into sherbert glasses and chill well. Just before serving sprinkle the cream with shredded almonds.

Hot Chocolate Bran Muffins—Three-fourths cup bran, 1¼ cups flour, 4 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. chocolate syrup, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 2 tbsps. melted butter or other shortening.

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together, add the bran. Mix chocolate syrup and milk together and stir in the eggs. Combine mixtures, fold in the melted butter. Bake in muffin tins in hot oven 15 or 20 minutes. For variety add ½ cup chopped nut meats. Make very small and serve hot for afternoon tea. Twelve to eighteen muffins.

Chocolate Fudge Cake—Five tbsps. chocolate syrup, ½ cup butter, 4 eggs, 1¼ cups granulated sugar, 1¼ cups flour, ½ cup milk, 2 tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp vanilla.

Cream the butter and sugar well, add the vanilla. Sift flour and baking powder together and add to the chocolate syrup mixture alternately with the milk, beating vigorously. Then beat in the well-whipped yolks of the eggs and last of all fold in the whites beaten to a stiff froth. Bake in layers and put together and ice with chocolate syrup icing.

Chocolate Icing—One lb. (a package) confectioner's sugar, ½ cup cream, 3 tbsps. chocolate syrup, ½ tsp. vanilla.

Add the cream gradually to the sugar, working it in well; then add the chocolate syrup and the vanilla. If the icing seems thin, add a little more sugar. If desired extra thick, do not add quite the quantity of cream.

Chocolate Butter Icing—Two tbsps. chocolate syrup, 2 tbsps. butter, confectioner's sugar, few drops of vanilla or almond extract.

Cream the butter well, adding sugar gradually, then begin adding the chocolate syrup a teaspoonful at a time, with more sugar as required. Stir to a paste of the right consistency for spreading and add flavoring. Faithfully yours,

MARTHA LEE

Advice to Lovelorn

The Proper Gift

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a gentleman for a year or more. Would it be proper to give him a birthday present? He is a business man. Would a fountain pen be a suitable gift? What would you suggest?

I have known two young men for quite a while. We have been very friendly. I am going away for a few days. Would it be proper to send them a card?

I have been living here for three years. I see a young man almost every day. He smiles, and I can see he would like to speak. Lately he said "Hello." Should I answer?

I am going with a young man in whom I am very much interested. He is interested in me, too. My family disapproves because I am five feet eleven inches tall and he is five feet eight inches. Does this make any difference?

RED HEAD.

A FOUNTAIN PEN would be a suitable gift to a friend. A book, his favorite brand of cigars or music, if he is musically inclined, would also be appropriate. The idea is to keep the present impersonal and inexpensive, so as not to pass a man under unwelcome obligations.

Scenic postal cards are impersonal, so it would be proper to send them to both girls and young men you know and like, inscribed with a short, friendly greeting.

It would not be wise to speak to a man just because you meet him on the street every day. Wait for an introduction.

Difference in height should not make the least difference in your friendship with the young man you like, provided he is a suitable friend in every other way. I am sure you can convince your family of this fact. Congenial, trustworthy qualities of heart and mind, not height, should determine a man's suitability as a friend.

To keep silver bright add about three tablespoonfuls of borax to a bowl of hot water, put in the silver and leave it for some hours. Rinse in clear water and wipe with soft cloth.

Serve delicious Chow Mein TONIGHT

NOW, you can buy from your grocer La Choy Soy and Brown Sauces, Noodles, and Bean Sprouts (large size for four to eight people, smaller size for two). Simply add your favorite meat and domestic vegetables and prepare according to the recipe on La Choy labels. With just a few minutes cooking your Chow Mein is ready to serve—truly a one-dish meal.

La Choy imported products are the essential ingredients of many Chinese dishes and are also widely used for improving soups, stews, hashes, and salads. Write for your free copy of the famous La Choy Book of Chinese Recipes.

Appeal to a Child's Love of Dramatic

By Constance Cameron

I'VE come to the conclusion that motherhood consists largely of salesmanship. Why it is that we must think up ways and means of making a child want to do what he should do on general principles has undoubtedly puzzled most of us. But the fact remains that the more necessary it is for a young person to do a certain thing the more he resists doing it. I don't know that that feeling is limited to childhood, either. I suspect that we would all rather do what we want to do than what we ought to do.

A DISTINCTIVE DESIGN

6293. This model is pictured in figured and plain silk. It is also pleasing in fashion crepe, or in crepe satin, with the reverse side of the material used for facings. In wool georgette or wool crepe it is nice with facings of satin. A camisole underbody holds the waist with slight blousing. The skirt is made with a narrow front panel and flare side and back sections to which a flutted yoke is joined. Shaped revers embellish the waist front. The sleeve is a bracelet style gathered to a narrow cuff at the wrist.

The pattern for this attractive style is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 3 yard of 32-inch lining for the underbody, 4¼ yards of 36-inch material together with 1¾ yards of contrasting material for facings on revers, cuffs and belt, and for underfacing on the flare portions of the skirt. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2¾ yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c. in coins or stamps. Send number and size of pattern ordered with your name and address.

Send 12c. in coins or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL AND WINTER 1928-29 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

The halves of lemons, when the juice has been extracted, should not be thrown away at once. They can be used in a hot bath. The oil in the rinds has a wonderful effect on stiff joints when rubbed on like soap. Again, when the lemon rinds are used in washing up greasy plates and dishes, fish or onion odors quickly disappear. The rinds are excellent, too, for removing marks on polished tables.

Appeal to a Child's Love of Dramatic

By Constance Cameron

I'VE come to the conclusion that motherhood consists largely of salesmanship. Why it is that we must think up ways and means of making a child want to do what he should do on general principles has undoubtedly puzzled most of us. But the fact remains that the more necessary it is for a young person to do a certain thing the more he resists doing it. I don't know that that feeling is limited to childhood, either. I suspect that we would all rather do what we want to do than what we ought to do.

However, there is a principle which may be used to good advantage in guiding your child toward desired activities and that is dramatization of the act we desire. A child will play almost anything.

A disturbing "going to bed" problem was worked out in one family when the mother, after reading her small daughter the story of Johnny Mouse and the Wishing Stick, asked the little girl if she wouldn't like to play she, too, had a wishing stick. The tiny girl, who hated going up to bed, and told the world in no uncertain terms that she hated it, said, "Yes," she would like to play that. So the mother thought for a moment, then said, "I know! Let's play that you have a wishing stick and you get on it and just wish—oh, so hard—that you were up in your nice quiet bedroom. The child's eyes sparkled. She straddled a make-believe wishing stick and scurried up the bread stairs. In the bedroom the mother said, "My, that was a swift wishing stick. You got up here so quickly. Now, let's get on it again and wish we were all undressed, ready for bed." The undressing was accomplished in a hurried silence and the tiny maid hopped into bed with a giggle. "I wished I were in bed, too, mother, and I am."

From observation I've concluded that the average procedure toward getting a child to drink milk is to set it before him and say: "Come on, now, darling. Drink the nice milk. It is good for you."

A young mother I know whose son evinced no interest in his glass of milk evolved the following story:

"Once upon a time there was a cow named Daisy, who said, 'I must give lots and lots of milk to Farmer Green.' So she gave milk to Farmer Green and he said: 'I must give the milk to the pan.' So he gave the milk to the shining biz pan. And the pan smiled in the sun and said: 'I must hurry and give all this milk to the bottles.' And the bottles, each wearing a cunning round cardboard hat, said: 'I must hurry and give this milk to the milkman.' So the milkman loaded them all in the white cart and said: 'I must hurry and give all this milk to the little children.'"

"Me, too?" inquired the tiny son, on his mother's lap. "Of course," replied mother. "That's why the cow was in such a hurry because she wanted you to have the milk in time for your breakfast." The little boy was much interested in the "cow story," as he called it, and at the next meal he picked up his glass of milk, saying: "I guess I'd better drink this or I might make the cow feel badly." Milk meant a whole series of interesting things to him then.

You will find that, while these two cases do not perhaps fit into your own particular problems, almost any obstacle can be happily overcome with a child if you but dramatize it—make it PLAY. make it FUN to do, instead of something which must be done because "it's good for you."

Cakes

and Miss Warner's pleasant "tasting surprise"

SHORTENING for cakes should be so fresh and sweet that in baking it brings out, rather than detracts from, the delicate flavor of the cake itself.

Can you imagine making a cake with a shortening you wouldn't be willing to taste? Miss Eleanor M. Warner couldn't. So she tasted Crisco just as it came from the can—and wrote:

"The taste of Crisco was fresh, sweet. Now I do not hesitate to use Crisco in any way in which high-priced butter might be used. And often I have even better results."

Just a taste of Crisco will tell you why more good home cooks are depending upon it for better cakes, pies, biscuits and fried foods.

Five-Minute Spice Cake

½ cup Crisco
1½ cups brown sugar
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
1¾ cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 cup chopped raisins

Put all ingredients together in a bowl and beat thoroughly until smooth. Bake in loaf pan in a moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Ice with white or caramel frosting. May also be baked in cup cakes.

Caramel Frosting

Make the frosting while the cake is baking

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup milk or cream
1 tablespoon Crisco
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook the sugar with the milk until it forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Stir in the Crisco and vanilla and a pinch of salt, and beat until thick enough to spread.

Maple Nut Cake Loaf

Will keep a long time

¾ cup Crisco
1 cup light brown sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream the Crisco with the sugar; stir in the beaten yolks. Add alternately the milk and the flour sifted with the baking powder and salt. Stir in the nuts well dredged with flour and the vanilla. Fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a paper-lined loaf pan in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 40 minutes. Ice with caramel icing.

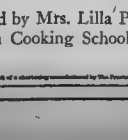
You test your eggs—
NOW . . .
taste your shortening



Crisco's sweet flavor will delight you!

STOLEN LOVE

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Author of "The SECRET STUDIO"

Will Any Man Love a Girl Who Has a Past She Tries to Hide?

CHAPTER 20

CURTIS blinked when he had his first sight of Ruth, waiting with Rollo in the lobby of the big hotel.

She floated toward them. Rollo, sparkling with reflected glory, bringing up in the rear. A royal barge, trailing a slight, black dory. The fur coat that the late Gillespie had given her, the close fitting silver gown, shining with a faint blue light, the rhinestone head band, the sight or nine bracelets, she had them all on, every one.

"Now—that we're all here—let's eat!" Rollo suggested, forgetting that he wasn't the host.

He beamed at Joan through the thick glasses that lent vision to his near-sighted eyes. "Looking beautiful as ever. In fact—in fact—" Five fhiskeys and sodas on an empty stomach had left him a little less about consonants—"I don't know when I've seen you more beautiful. Let's drink the same toast we drank last time we all got drunk together—Beautiful women—Ow—who kicked me?"

"Nobody kicked you. You're drunk!" Ruth cried angrily. "You do make me tired—always tanking up before the party starts—"

"Somebody cert'nly did kick me. Come to think of it, it was you. Recognize the rhinestoned in your heel—been kicked before—ha!"

Curtis hand found Joan's under the tablecloth. He covered it with his, protectingly. "You mustn't mind them," that steady, kindly touch meant, "I'll take care of you—"

But Joan could not meet his gaze. She knew why Ruth had kicked Rollo. Warning him to be quiet. Not to speak of Bill—

"I was about to say, when I was stepped on," Rollo continued with dignity, "that I would propose the same toast—the same toast—"

"The same toast that you did on the night Bill and Ruth and you and I had dinner here together," Joan said clearly. And all of a sudden she felt better. Why shouldn't Curtis know about that? What was wrong? And she wouldn't share secrets with Ruth, Ruth with her diamond bracelets and fur coats. . . .

"Exactly," Rollo beamed. "And what I was going to say. Now what was the toast—"

Ruth leaned back in her chair and looked at Joan long and searchingly, the thin pencilled line of her brows faintly arched into a question—"Why—why—"

Curtis was ordering the dinner, as a connoisseur, carefully considering her that impressed the waiter and Ruth. He did not seem to hear, but when the left the table to dance he asked, "Who is Bill, Joan?"

"A school friend of mine," Joan answered him, too. . . that's how Ruth met him . . . and I came here to dinner with—"

There—it was out. She'd told him They went on dancing. Joan felt strangely light, like a balloon. Happy, too, awfully happy. Except for the little heavy place in her heart, that would always hurt . . . always

"When did you come here with them?"

"One night—when you were in the North."

"I wouldn't do it again. They're not your kind, Joan. And let's break this up as early as we decently can. I should have had more sense than to ask them, Fuzzy-head Rollo terrible. Lucky I suppose I have to dance with it too—pity me!"

"Love me?" he smiled.

"Sort of!"

He laughed again, gently, confidently. "Damn—the music's stopped!"

She was laughing too, happily, so glad of Curtis' love . . . so glad . . . as different, so alike . . . both loving her, and she loving them . . .

When the fourth telegram from home arrived, Rollo groaned and reached for the telephone. "Get me a hwer on the Owl, will you? Yeh, tonight. Pasadena. Well, a compartment, drawing room—I'm not fussy. Say, what's the matter with the service? Oh, well—upper then. I gotta get out on that train—"

He was going to send a wire too, but he remembered that the hotel stenographer had a dimple, so he went downstairs and dictated it instead

"Emmett Keyes.
161 Marina Drive, Pasadena.

Kill the fatted calf your darling boy is coming home atop Twi Bill to meet the Owl tomorrow morning. Rollo."

"Send it collect," he grinned, and tipped the girl a dollar.

"Oh, Rollo, you p.g. to go away and leave me!" Ruthie cried, when he stopped to say goodby.

"Don't you think you can [illegible] it?"

"Don't go—stay a while longer—"

"Can't—broke—"

"Oh!"

"Yep. I gotta go home and make myself square with the old man. Good old man at that. You wait till he meets you, Ruthie, he'll pull in his horns then."

"If you don't watch out, Martin will be squaring himself at your expense."

"I thought you liked Will'um. Don't worry about him double-crossing me, squarest kid that ever lived. And say—to tell you the truth I thought you were kind of gone on him, Ruthie. I felt pretty sick over it for a while, it's /God's truth I did—"

"Silly!"

"No, honest. I thought you were—"

She smiled, and leaning over, kissed him squarely on the mouth. "Foolish boy!"

But the bit of commonsense that old man Keyes had handed down to his son, with which the boy's flippancy and laziness were threaded, kept Rollo from completely believing her, though his heart ached for her. "Yep, I'm foolish," he agreed, and kissed her back. "Falling for a lemon like you—"

She laid soft hands on his sloping shoulders. "Rollo, it's Joan Blaine's Willum has on his mind, not me—"

"Oh rats—old Bill! He's got some other female he's sold to though." Came up here to see her, and they mixed connections.. That's really why he went back—"

"He came up here to see her!"

"Sure. Anything funny about that? Didn't I come up to see you?"

"Oh, Rollo, you dumbbell! Don't you see it was Joan! They used to be sweethearts. I got that much out of her. They—oh well—why exhume the skeletons . . . so he came up to see her, eh? And found her with Barstow. . . ." She whistled. "So that's it"

He whistled, too, a long drawn out understanding whistle. "Poor old Bill"

Old man Keyes waited in the library. It was very quiet in his big house, the servants had long since gone to bed. Sometimes he drowsed a little, and since the cigar he had been smoking fell out of his mouth and burned his hand.

He got up cursing and stirred the fire. Three o'clock, and Rollo not home yet.

"Poor Kate . . . it wasn't much fun for her. "I'll make it up to her some day," he had thought. "A silk dress, a sealskin coat, a stylish go-cart for the baby—"

And then, when the time came, he could have given her everything it was too late . . . she was dead. "I'll give it all to the boy," he had thought then, "and if there's any way of her knowing in that place where she's gone, she'd be glad, she'll smile to herself and she'll think, 'Isn't he wonderful, all Emmett could do for the lad'—

All the dreams, and the hopes . . . for nothing. This great barrack of a house and he all alone in it.

"It's no use," he thought bitterly, "I've made a failure of it all, but I'll have one more try—I'll have a talk with him—if I have to sit up till noon—"

They stumbled up the stairs at last, his son and Bill Martin, the boy who was going to do so much in the oil fields, who was going to do so much for Rollo.

"Come in," he said gruffly. "I've got something to say."

There was a scuffle, mumbled words. "Rollo's pretty well shot, sir, hadn't you better let him sleep it off, and talk to him in the morning?"

It was Martin talking. Rollo plodded solemnly on up the stairs "I'll talk to you, then. If you're in any state to be talked to."

Bill followed him stiffly into the library. His tie had come loose, his dark hair was standing on end.

"A nice looking pair you are . . . sit down."

Bill sat down. Sat soking at his well manicured hands, waiting for what Old Man Keyes had to say. He knew what it would be. A tirade against the sort of company he and Rollo were keeping. They had been "hitting it up," as Rollo called it, since he came home.

"I won't have any more of this in my house. Coming in all hours of the morning. Drunk. Drunk. Drunk. Chasing around with God knows what company, you and my boy. I tried to give you a chance, William. I sent you down to the oil fields, put you to work at twice what you were worth—"

Bill flushed darkly. "If you consider you're paying me too much—"

The old man held up his hand. "Let me talk, boy. I've waited all night to say what's on my mind. I'm going to say it. I put you to work at twice what you were worth. When you began to earn it I was proud. I thought I'd found a man . . . I thought you had good stuff in you, lad . . ."

"I notice you're using the past tense." Bill said bitterly. He was bitter because he knew it was true. He had been given a chance, and what was he doing with it now? Nothing!

"You've changed since you went north," the old man went on, not unkindly. "I don't know why. Is it a girl?"

Bill didn't answer.

"Because, if it is, you're taking it all wrong. If she's worth having, take her, take a chance like I did. Work for her. And if it's money she's wanting, if it's the lack of it that's making her hold out, I'll get her go, boy. She's not worth the thought——"

"If that's all you've got to say to me——" Bill burst out hotly. He couldn't hear this talk. He got up and moved toward the door.

"If it is a girl . . . well, think it over. And I'll thank you not to be leading my son out to help you drown your sorrows, young man—"

"Rollo's old enough——"

"Maybe a couple of young fools Especially you, flaring up at me when I speak for your good. Go back to the oil fields, you were doing fine down there, and you and Rollo only get in each other's way when you're under foot. Go back in the morning. Now will you do that? And no hard feeling . . . just begin again and work hard. Let the old man be proud of you yet. Will you do that?"

Bill took the big hairy hand outstretched to him. "All right, I'll be off in the morning. And—thanks'—"

When he woke Rollo to say goodby to Bill the next day later, he was wearing the old suit he had worn when he came. "What's the idea?" Rollo yawned. "Look like a tramp."

Bill laughed.

"I sent young Martin back to Bakersfield." Old Man Keyes said at breakfast. After his talk with Bill he felt better. Rollo might sneak, but he couldn't be altogether a fool, his son and Kate's . . .

"But he won't stay long," Rollo grinned. "I notice he only took one suitcase."

"He'd better" the old man snapped.

"You can't keep ol' Bill away from the bright lights. He'll be back."

But Bill never came back. Neither did he ever return to the oil fields. He simply disappeared.

Rollo mourned him for a while. Even the old man missed him. They kept his room as he had left it. With all his clothes, his well-tailored, expensive clothes, hanging up in the closet.

In the spring when Mrs. Mallory, the housekeeper, looked them over, she found they were full of moths. She sent them to the Salvation Army.

"Rollo says Will'um cleared out without a word." Ruth told Joan one day. "He started for Bakersfield after a little tiff he had with the old man, and he simply never arrived. Can you beat that? Left all his clothes behind, and everything. I wrote Rollo not to worry, he'd be back. Shouldn't wonder if he'd turn up here again. You know I was in love with that boy for a while—"

"Good riddance to bad rubbish' Malise said, when Joan told her.

"There's None So Blind"—

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

"THERE'S none so blind as he who won't see!"

And especially is this true of those who refuse to recognize Love when it comes to them.

Deliberately they shut their eyes—and their hearts—to his pleading, and go their selfish ways, secure in the thought that they have fooled him. But there's no such thing as denying or foiling love. For sooner or later, we must all succumb to his pleadings and then—well, then were sorry that we "played blind" for so long

It may be fine and lovely to go dancing along, heart whole and fancy free, but the time eventually comes when each begins to get the weest bit fed up with things Then it is we turn to Love Sometimes it happens, that it's then too late, and oh [illegible] a broken heart we carry around—forever! For love punishes those sometimes when they refuse him admission to their hearts.

So don't be so blind that you won't see Love when he comes calling. Be ever on the watch for him, for in this way, and this way alone, lies happiness for ever and ever and ever.

"Tiger Love"; The White Man Drops to His Knees

Back in the university, in Bombay, I was taught to ridicule these things. Yet I still remember the tales my grandmother told me of the gods coming to join the sacred festivals occasionally. Perhaps we had been near your sorrows, young man—"

"Rollo's old enough——"

"Maybe a couple of young fools Especially you, flaring up at me when I speak for your good. Go back to the oil fields, you were doing fine down there, and you and Rollo only get in each other's way when you're under foot. Go back in the morning. Now will you do that? And no hard feeling . . . just begin again and work hard. Let the old man be proud of you yet. Will you do that?"

Bill took the big hairy hand outstretched to him. "All right, I'll be off in the morning. And—thanks'—"

When he woke Rollo to say goodby to Bill the next day later, he was wearing the old suit he had worn when he came. "What's the idea?" Rollo yawned. "Look like a tramp."

Bill laughed.

"I sent young Martin back to Bakersfield." Old Man Keyes said at breakfast. After his talk with Bill he felt better. Rollo might sneak, but he couldn't be altogether a fool, his son and Kate's . . .

"But he won't stay long," Rollo grinned. "I notice he only took one suitcase."

"He'd better" the old man snapped.

"You can't keep ol' Bill away from the bright lights. He'll be back."

But Bill never came back. Neither did he ever return to the oil fields. He simply disappeared.

Rollo mourned him for a while. Even the old man missed him. They kept his room as he had left it. With all his clothes, his well-tailored, expensive clothes, hanging up in the closet.

In the spring when Mrs. Mallory, the housekeeper, looked them over, she found they were full of moths. She sent them to the Salvation Army.

"Rollo says Will'um cleared out without a word." Ruth told Joan one day. "He started for Bakersfield after a little tiff he had with the old man, and he simply never arrived. Can you beat that? Left all his clothes behind, and everything. I wrote Rollo not to worry, he'd be back. Shouldn't wonder if he'd turn up here again. You know I was in love with that boy for a while—"

"Good riddance to bad rubbish' Malise said, when Joan told her.

CAN BE AVOIDED

With Lucky Tiger, like Head and Chest Colds can be healed with Rhinitis No. 2. Sold and 60 Money-Back Guarantee. Barbers or Druggists.

LUCKY TIGER

And he obeyed the command. With an astounding agility he was climbing the tree at their side in a manner which rivalled that of the monkeys of the nearby bush.

The ceremonial meadow, scoured in a minute, was almost as bare as it had been before that early morning procession had marched upon it.

And not the last to leave it was the venerable and holy 92 year-old Mahji, whose feet had not trod the earth so vigorously in a score of years"

"Where's their religion now, I wonder?" muttered the white man, ironically "Their idols didn't seem to like that bullet-dance so much, after all"

And then the smile died from his lips.

Peering from behind the tree he saw the sacred fires still flickering in the center of the field

One lone figure remained. It was the slim maiden of mystery, her arms still lying with their naive grace, her slender ankles tripping the intricate steps of the dance, her lissome body swaying as though the drums yet throbbed and the droning lines and flegeolettes still sung to her.

"My God" cried the white hunter, "She doesn't know what's happened. Where's that tiger anyway"

He swung his heaviest gun to a hip-rest, fumbled at the breech to make sure that the cartridge was in its proper place, and stepped forth on the field with slow deliberation Mechanically he advanced, with that same measured tread which had borne him through the barrages on No Man's Land a few years earlier

There were no more tremors in his knees. . . no bristling of hair now.

His whole soul was absorbed with one thought of that slip of a dancing girl left alone on the broad, moonlit field with a man eating tiger, unaware of her doom

On he marched now, The pointed gun was half swung to his shoulder, his finger pressing like cold steel against the hair-trigger

From his perch in the fork of the tree the faithful Punjari muttered prayers to all the divinities of his ancestors. Forgotten was the lore of the white man's teaching in the university at Bombay. Remembered only was the primitive faith that somewhere, somehow, some beneficent spirit might answer his supplications for the safety of his amo master The tears were streaming down his face, and he vainly strove to clear his eyes with the back of his hand that he might observe the fate of his foul-mouthed heathen master.

After he saw the dancing girl, apparently unaware in a mazy of rhythm, still treading the trail to tragedy

Still farther afield he saw that dread denizen of the deep jungle, stalking its prey with the same sinuous grace of a cat creeping upon a rounded squirrel

"The tiger" murmured Punjari. "Oh, my poor Sahib."

The white man had copied the same measured tread which had borne him through the barrages of pleasant mouth was twisting hitherto very grim Compared to the thrill of the bizarre scene a few minutes earlier this was almost overwhelming. He forgot self preservation He forgot the more or less commonplace problems of his everyday life.

Forgotten was every day of his past He—except certain vague memories, partially out of focus now, which lingered in the corners of his brain, even it seemed—were half veiled in the corners of his eyes

Recollections of other moonlit nights on other fields like this, where wood hunting was afoot Then, though, it had been man hunting . . . with the inevitable thrill that he gave to and was a man a dozen men, against whom he had no personal grudge!

But now, how different.

The most dreaded demon of all India. The monster who reared upon the innocent beasts of the field, men and women, children!

"My first tiger!" he gritted between his teeth and his heart beat within him

The tiger had approached within a score of feet of the dancing girl, suddenly she paused in her mazy movements, sensing her danger

The beast stared at her as though pausing to enjoy the dawning sense of conquest before the final rending of victory.

Bolt upright the maiden stood. And then, suddenly, she collapsed like a flower smote with the blast of an Arctic whirlwind.

The white man dropped to his knee . . . but not in prayer!

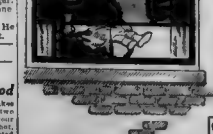
In 5 MILLION HOMES TONIGHT



A cry in the night holds no terror for the household where there's Castoria! A few drops, and Baby's sudden ailment is relieved. Your little one is comforted, and you have done only what any nurse or any doctor would have you do. For Castoria is a vegetable product; made for babies, and the one safe means of quieting an infant. It is not a narcotic, it contains no opiate, yet it always comforts a child.

Don't let night come without a bottle of Castoria on hand; it's a bright, comfortable feeling to know it's in the house. And it is an ever-ready aid when any of the children are constipated, have colic, develop a case of diarrhea. Old and tried, but the standby of modern mothers. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

For COLDS of All the Family

This Modern External Treatment is best

Mothers prefer the external treatment, Vicks VapoRub, for children's colds, because it avoids the constant "dosing" so disturbing to delicate little stomachs. You just rub it on throat and chest.

Other members of the family prefer Vicks for their own colds, because it is convenient, and quick in bringing relief. Colds usually yield overnight.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

QUITTED TRICKS

THE old Laws of Auction Bridge provided that "a trick turned and quitted may not be looked at until the end of the hand." The same laws defined a quitted trick as follows: "A trick is quitted when it is turned and the player no longer touches it."

The present Laws (1918) do not define a quitted trick, although they contain a provision that a quitted trick may be examined by any player upon demand, if his side has not led or played to the next trick. In the absence of a legal definition, the old one may be assumed to apply.

The new Laws are also defective in not providing a penalty for the unauthorized examination of a quitted trick. The old Laws prescribed a penalty of 25 points in the adverse honor-score for each offense.

Whenever it is suspected that any of the quitted tricks contain more than four cards, as for example, when a player during a hand, is found to hold less than his correct number of cards, and the others, their correct number, any player may count the cards of the tricks face downward if any trick be found to contain a surplus card, either opponent of the player who is short may face the trick, select the surplus card and restore it to the player who is short; but this does not change the ownership of the trick. The player who was short is answerable for any revoke as if the missing card had been in his hand continuously.

Should the side in whose tricks the surplus card is found, have failed to keep its tricks properly separated, either opponent of such side may select a card from the tricks improperly gathered and restore such card to the player who is short. This provision would seem to indicate the intent of the Law that the Declarer's "book" should not be closed, for if closed, the trick upon which a surplus card had been played might not be determinable.

The subject of tomorrow's article will be: "The Indirect Assist."

Today's question is to be answered by tomorrow's article is: "What kind of holding renders possible an indirect assist of partner's bid?"

W. Whitehead will answer questions concerning Auction Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

SERVISS ON INSECTS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WISH to echo the call of Dr. Howard, the head of the government bureau of entomology, for a broader popular and sucational interest in the science of insects. Nobody who has a knowledge of the situation can doubt the truth of Dr. Howard's assertion, astonishing though it may seem, that it is not man but insects that hold the dominant place in the whole animal kingdom. Otherwise put, this is not "the age of man," as has been fondly and proudly imagined, but "the age of insects," or, to speak of the whole branch of animals to which the insects belong, "the age of the arthropods."

There are half a million known species of insects in the world. All the other species of animals put together, including all the other classes of the arthropodia themselves, number less than a quarter as many as the insects. Besides, the insects far exceed all other animals in the number of individuals representing each species. They constitute half a million armies, each composed of billions of individuals. Who can count the hosts of flies in a village, the mosquitos in a swamp, the bugs and locusts in a pasture, the bugs and grubs in a garden, the caterpillars in the fruit trees, the ravagers in the cotton fields, the grain-devourers, the tree-destroyers, the flower-spoilers, the borers, the disembowelers, the smotherers and killers of every description that prey upon the vegetable kingdom, the defenseless realm of the plants? Or who can number the clouds of minute insects that choke the air on a Summer or an Autumn day, or the tormentors of beast and man that spread not only discomfort but disease and death broadcast? The insects are man's most powerful and most dangerous enemy. By their overwhelming numbers and amazing powers of reproduction they conquer.

The insects began their career upon the earth millions of years before man. "Man is a newcomer. He is yet an experiment. He is only beginning to dispute the ascendancy of the arthropod series." These are the words of some of the foremost living entomologists. Dr. Howard is quite right in saying:

"Why is not entomology given a vastly greater importance in the leading educational institutions?" and in adding, "One answer may be put in the form of a question. 'Where are the teachers?' Teachers must be taught before they can become teachers. And those teachers that come from the great zoological laboratories can teach little but what they have been taught, and they have not been taught entomology.

I am no entomologist, but I can testify that entomology is a fascinating subject for those who will turn their attention to it. Let boys be interested in the ants and their astounding wars no less than the very war that we men are now trying to outlaw), to the glittering host of the tiger beetles gleaming in the sun like crusaders in jeweled and rainbow-hued armor, to the tricks and traps of the antlions, and crafty ways of spiders, the amazing performances of wasps and bees, the strange forms and colors of leaf insects and stick insects, the incredible doings of diving spiders, and let them see these creatures and their habitations for themselves.

To Demonstrate Remarkable New

RUPTURE INVENTION

If you are ruptured and wear a truss, now is your opportunity to get a FREE TRIAL of the most scientifically constructed Rupture Support ever invented.

William S. Rice, Adams, N. Y., originator of the Rice (Non-Surgical) Rupture Method, is sending a representative, with physician registered in Mass., to the Brunswick Hotel, Boylston corner, Clarendon, Boston, Mass., from Monday morning, Oct. 15, until Saturday evening, Oct. 13, to personally explain and demonstrate his wonderful new Rupture Invention entirely free to every man, woman and child who is ruptured.

It is absolutely guaranteed to hold any rupture, large or small, no matter where located and afford proper protection at all times.

It is positively the most comfortable for every day wear at all kinds of work and can be worn night and at all other times with no discomfort.

It is guaranteed not to slip out of place under any circumstances and the pressure can be easily adjusted to all positions and movements of the body that there is no cutting or chafing.

It has proven the only properly constructed Rupture Support ever supplied for ruptured men, can be worn with or without the corset and actually improves the abdominal outline.

It is equally valuable for ruptured children as it allows for full normal growth and development without hindering youthful activities or altering the slightest protrusion of the rupture.

Pads are made of soft, resilient material, light, durable and comfortable. Hug the flesh snugly yet do not irritate. They are designed and shaped to fit and give support in such a way that no the bowel cannot possibly escape.

Hundreds of thousands in use all over the civilized world, and thousands are throwing all trusses on the scrap heap after a brief use of this scientific Rupture Support.

THE FREE TRIAL

is for every man, woman and child who is ruptured. So don't fail to call and test the exceptional merits of this guaranteed Rupture and Weakness Support. It has no equal and is being recommended by physicians and hospitals everywhere. Call any time from 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m., or 7 to 9 evenings. The test, remember, costs you nothing. Lady Expert attends all women. If for any reason you are unable to call, write for FREE TRIAL to Resignation is that point at which a girl stops announcing coldly that she will never marry a poor man and begins talking warmly of marrying "for love."

This is the time of year when the neighborhood pest stops getting up at dawn to run the lawn mower and begins sitting up until midnight to run the radio.

An old-fashioned woman is one who remembers when a display of knees was "news," election day was just a holiday when father would be home to lunch, and a man's razor was as sacred as his honor.

Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not expressed in fancy; rich, not gaudy;
For the apparel oft proclaims the man.
—Shakespeare.

Your lost friends are not dead, but gone before.
Advanced a stage or two upon that road
Which you must travel in the steps they trod.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston Evening American.

Landlord—Fine old inn, sir. Everything in this house has a story.

Tourist (grumpily)—I don't doubt it. Is there any legend connected with this piece of cheese?
ANNA CERELLA.
84 Brooks st., East Boston.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

A NEW YORK woman was evicted from her apartment the other day for taking in roomers. She had been renting out the clothes closet for $60 a month.

Pitiful Case

The guy who had fallen arches so badly that his feet began to rattle.

You're Right

The Scotch national anthem is "The Best Things in Life Are Free."

Null and Void

The fellow who says he rolls his own cigarettes because he needs the exercise.

The Unfair Sex

Most women marry in haste and then look around for another husband at leisure.

Take It or Leave It

A man borrowed 10 cents from a Scotchman the other day, but he had to put up a dollar as security.

Excuse It, Please

The telephone company is now giving two wrong numbers for five cents.

Our Own Vaudeville

Manager—So you want to join the automobile club? Are you married?

Motorist—Sure. I've got a wife and three trailers.

"TOO YOUNG"

DEAR MIS FAIRFAX:

I am sixteen years old. I like to take out girl friends, but my parents object, as they say I am too young. I do not agree with them. What do you advise me to do?
JACK C.

WHILE you are living at home and your parents are supporting you, Jack, I am afraid you will have to consider their wishes. Never mind, being too young is a handicap you are sure to outgrow. After a year or two you will still have plenty of time to invite girls out.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

A boy about eight years old called at my door soliciting subscriptions for a daily newspaper. When I explained to him that I was taking that paper and, which was all I had time to read, he replied:

"That's all right, lady; you can just lay these away and read them when you get time."

BILLIE DOVE IN BIG ROLE IN GLYN STORY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

Los Angeles, Oct. 9—The combination of Billie Dove, George Fitzmaurice and Elinor Glyn is one to make exhibitors listen to reason. Someone at the First National studios with a sense of the fitness of things planned this triumvirate.

Billie, who is beautiful enough to symbolize any Glyn heroine, and George Fitzmaurice, whose imagination always soars to the ultra-romantic and the million-dollar set, can make a best seller out of this Glyn story, if I know my movies.

The story is "The Man and the Moment," and it figures as one of Madame Glyn's most popular novels, so you know what that means. Agnes Christine Johnston has prepared the scenario, which goes into production November 1.

"The Man and the Moment" finishes George Fitzmaurice's contract with First National, and then what? With Warner Brothers cutting down expenses, who can say—

The girl with the voice wins these days. What with sound pictures emphasizing every inflection of the gal who can sing and who has had stage experience who seems to be getting the fastest roles, Nancy Carroll, who came directly to the screen from the stage, has been given the ingenue role in "The Wolf of Wall Street." George Bancroft's next picture.

This, it is pointed out, is Nancy's first dramatic role.* The others were merely feeders, leading up to this momentous occasion.

United Artists find themselves in a curious dilemma. Lupe Velez is just whom they want to play opposite Harry Richman, but in a generous moment, they lent their Mexican songbird to Famous Players-Lasky for their film of "The Wolf Song." She will be busy working for Victor Fleming for the next five or six weeks. The Richman picture goes into production in two weeks, so United Artists cannot wait for Lupe.

Now John Considine, Jr., is paging the stage and screen to see if he can find a pretty young girl with a voice. If you know any such, get in touch with United Artists' studio. Not any advertisement.

Jack Gilbert's plans continue to be unsettled. He and his manager, H. E. Edington, returned from New York Saturday night without any contracts signed or actual promises made. The Gilbert contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer expires May 1, and unless the handsome hero of the screen changes his mind he will pack the make-up box at some other studio.

Of course, you cannot tell, but those in the confidence of Mr. Gilbert say he has determined to make a change. I might have mentioned as being the favorite company, but, so far, there is nothing really definite about it.

A merry little surprise is about to be sprung on the motion picture industry. Jack Cohn is introducing television in new power with "Lone Wolf's Daughter," which was finished yesterday and which stars Bert Lytell and features Estelle Olmstead. So quietly has Mr. Cohn been working on this stunt that not a soul knew what was happening until he spread the gladsome tidings. I don't know whether it is an improvement or a backslide, because I haven't seen the television scenes in action, but, listening to the Columbia folk, it sounds good.

Norman Trevor must be in much better health these days, for he was a few months ago. Both he and Hugh Allen have been negotiating with Columbia for parts in "The College Coquette," starring Marie Prevost. Unless Mr. Trevor is greatly improved he certainly would not be back at work.

His seems to have faded from sight almost entirely since his friends, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Warner, took him in hand and sent him to a sanitarium. When he was in good health Mr. Trevor achieved considerable success in certain of our movies.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Louise Dresser being congratulated on her birthday. Jack Baird giving an exhibition dance. Fifteen Hollywood favorites appearing at a dancing wardrobe. Mrs. Charles Murray being discussed as the most beautiful woman present at a recent dinner party. Ruth Roland promising to tell when she decides to become Mrs. Bard. Buster Keaton surprised with a dinner given by his wife. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

VICTORY 6 CARS WIN PRAISE

Without any change in price, several new features, adding to the mechanical equipment and material luxury of the Victory Six line, have been announced by Dodge Brothers. The cars have won great favor.

The new types are now in the hands of the Henshaw Motor Co., Boston dealer, and are available in the sedan, sport sedan, coupe and coupe-brougham.

Mechanical changes in the improved Victory Six models include an engine temperature indicator on the dash and a fuel gauge set in the starting button on the dash-board within easy reach of the driver.

Maximum vision for the operator and front seat occupants has been effected by an increase of 76 square inches in the area of the windshield, while the glass area of each front door in the sedan has been increased by 80 square inches.

In producing longer and roomier bodies Dodge Brothers have increased the height and length of the sedan and coupe-brougham models to the greatest head and leg room for all passengers.

$300,000 GEMS STOLEN AS 2 ARE TIED

New York, Oct. 9—Surprising two gem merchants in a sales conference in the office of the A. K. S. Jewelry Co. on the 12th floor of 76 West Forty-sixth st., four armed and masked bandits robbed them of $300,000 in diamonds, tied them to radiators and escaped.

Joseph Goldmuntz, a jeweler of 10 W. Forty-seventh st., had taken $200,000 worth of uncut diamonds to the office of Solomon S. Stein, head of the A. K. S. Jewelry Co., following a "date" made by telephone Saturday. Stein had asked to see the gems with the view of buying them.

The two were in conference when the buzzer of the outer office door rang. Stein excused himself to Goldmuntz, lifted a bullet-proof glass at the door and faced two men, one of whom thrust a revolver into his face.

35 INJURED ON SHIP IN CITY

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Battered by a terrific gale she bucked to render assistance to another storm-stricken vessel, the Hamburg-American liner Albert Ballin docked today with a list of 34 injured passengers and one injured member of the crew.

All the injured had recovered sufficiently to be able to walk ashore.

While almost 800 miles off Newfoundland on her way to New York Wednesday the Albert Ballin picked up a distress call from the Dutch freighter Celseno. While going to her assistance the German ship was struck with the full fury of the gale and an enormous wave buffeted her, smashing windows and flooding the promenade decks.

Almost all the passengers were shaken up and bruised, but only 34 required treatment.

AUTO LOANS

An Indispensable Service

Mankind will find themselves short in funds now and then, and this is common to all of us. If you want a loan and have substantial bank accounts, endorsers, real estate, bond, jewelry, etc., you have nothing to worry—the doors of financial institutions are open to you—but if you offer a used automobile as security, then yours is a problem. Where can you go? What can you do?—as all the doors are shut tight against you.

Is it not a convenience and, if pressing, a real relief to find a recognized financial institution extending accommodations to auto owners in a businesslike way, without endorsement, red tape or publicity, without taking advantage of the circumstances, at the usual automobile finance rates, and you retain the automobile? Thus we render a real service to auto owners in universal demand, and in a manner pleasant, unique and acceptable to the most fastidious individual.

Ours is a service that is INDISPENSABLE to auto owners and not available elsewhere.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve pe among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of lited States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, bute State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

About Disarmament

We Should Spend More Time, Thought and Money Putting Our House in Order

If the forecast is true that our Government will take no part in further efforts to limit naval armament until it has to revise or abandon the limitations fixed at the Washington Conference six years ago, friends of national safety will be glad.

Our experience in these conferences has not been happy.

At the Washington Conference we surrendered our chances of superior strength on the sea and got nothing in return.

Then we let our weakened navy grow still weaker. With the result that at the conference in Geneva last year we had nothing to trade and had to come home with nothing done.

We should be quite as badly off if we went into another pow-wow at Geneva this year. In fact, worse off. For our navy is still weakened, whereas it appears that Great Britain and France, with Japan applauding, have entered into a secret pact which would put us deeper in the hole if we allowed it to influence us.

Instead, then, of sacrificing our own power of defense in futile efforts to get other nations to disarm, the wise course for us would be to make our navy what it should be and let other nations follow what course they please.

The other nations are not going to protect the United States in a pinch. There is, therefore, no reason why the United States should be so eager to get them to disarm that it neglects its own welfare.

Lloyd George, shrewd realist, told the exact truth when he wrote:

"The nations are not yet ready by any means to trust their destiny to the herald angels. Their ultimate confidence is still in the god of war. Not one of them is prepared to scrap a battery of artillery, to dismantle a single cruiser or to surrender to civilian use a single flight of airplanes."

While that is their attitude it would be an excellent thing if the United States spent more time, thought and money putting its own house in order.

Here's Flying

And Not an Accident in Three Years

BRITISH AIRSHIP BUILT FOR REGULAR SERVICE BETWEEN ENGLAND AND INDIA

This interesting machine, looking like a big automobile, is in reality the British airship Calcutta, a combination airship and boat to be used in regular "Empire Air Service" between London and India.

The two men in the airboat are Captain Bailey and Sir Eric Geddes, who, like every other British statesman, is interesting himself in flying to maintain world power.

The Calcutta, one of a fleet for regular service between London, heart of the British Empire, and India, where the British govern 300,000,000 Asiatics, will make the trip, almost half way around the world, in less than seven days.

To the glory of the great British flying organization called "Empire Air Service" it can truly be said that no damage to any passenger has occurred in three years of flying, a wonderful record for the beginning of the flying age.

The British for centuries have "ruled the waves." Their fleet has been the greatest, their battleships the most powerful. When we allowed ourselves to be dragged into the late big war we had to rely on England's boats.

Now, the waves of water on which heavy ships float are no longer important as regards world power.

GREAT BRITAIN KNOWS IT. The AIR WAVES count now. And ships that rule the AIR will rule the WORLD.

That's why the British concentrate as they do on airship building.

We shall wake up and do the same thing LATER, after somebody has taught us a good lesson, probably.

Today's Inventions

Most of Them Come From the Technical Men of the Corporations

There was a day when inventions were made by farm boys musing along the ploughed furrow, or by gifted barbers in pauses of their tonsorial activities, or by tired store clerks burning the midnight oil.

Today most successful research and invention is a part of the mass output of our great corporations.

Chemists of the United States are astonished to learn that the United States Steel Corporation has 2115 technical men at work on steel problems and tests in 179 laboratories. At Lorain, Ohio, the corporation is turning a large steel mill into an experimental laboratory.

GENTLEMEN PREFER TO HAVE WARS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE was a magazine article published some time ago entitled "Gentlemen Prefer Wars."

I never read the article, but I like the title.

Curiously enough men have grown eloquent depicting the horror of war, its blood, confusion and waste. The play, "What Price Glory," is in point.

But somehow or other war is always popular. In spite of all its drawbacks people go into it enthusiastically.

One latent reason, perhaps, is an economic one. They know they will be clothed, fed and taken care of when they are in the army. Nothing so frightens the ordinary man as the prospect of losing his job. He doesn't lose his job in the army if he behaves himself. As far as danger and death are concerned they are not very important in the minds of most men compared with economic security.

Another thing you find in war, in spite of all its alleged tyranny, is ideal democracy. Plutocrat and laborers fight side by side, share the same tent and eat the same chow.

As far as death is concerned most men think less of it than we suppose. It is likely to come to anyone in peace and in war.

The soldier's health is looked after, their living is secure and there is adventure aplenty.

When peace comes, trouble comes.

There is no unemployment in any country during a war. After the war, in peace, there were 2,000,000 unemployed in Great Britain and nearly 6,000,000 in the United States.

The Comptroller of the Currency said that deflation in the U. S. A. had cost industry more than the war did. In 1921 trade was at its lowest for 20 years.

What's the trouble?

In war you have four things which peace has been unable to attain.

First, organization, complete and perfect.

Second, a unifying sentiment. Peace has never succeeded in making religion, or organized love, as strong as patriotism, which is, generally, organized hate.

Third, you have discipline. Everybody toes the mark. Everybody co-operates. If a man blats about personal liberty he is promptly shot.

Fourth, the uniform code is Honor. Men don't work for money, but for something better. There is no finer code of honor than among officers of the army. What would happen to us in peace if that held among office-holders!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WANT to succeed? Want to sell your stuff to the world? Of course you do. Then take this tip from a friend—

SELL YOURSELF FIRST! FOR YOU ARE YOUR OWN MOST IMPORTANT CUSTOMER. AND UNLESS YOU CAN SELL YOUR STUFF TO YOURSELF 100%, YOU'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO SELL IT TO THE WORLD.

Most of us start life believing that success depends on manipulating other people, outside circumstances. It doesn't.

SUCCESS DEPENDS ON THE PROPER MANIPULATION OF YOURSELF AND YOUR OWN CIRCUMSTANCES, NOT THE OTHER FELLOW.

IT'S YOUR ATTITUDE, NOT THE OTHER MAN'S, WHICH WILL DETERMINE THE SUCCESS OR FAILURE OF YOUR PLANS. YOU MUST SELL YOURSELF FIRST.

But remember this—"selling yourself" means much more than wanting to do a thing or thinking you can do it. Selling yourself an idea means committing yourself to that idea—committing yourself to pay the price of whatever hardship or sacrifice may be entailed in putting that idea over.

Selling yourself means believing in the thing you want to do so thoroughly that you are filled with a FIGHTING FAITH.

Believing in it so thoroughly that all your fear and laziness are consumed by that belief and you are filled with a fiery fury of confidence and enthusiasm.

When a fury like that once takes possession of a man nothing can stand against it. It burns its way through all opposition and indifferences. It has been said that by faith we can move mountains. We can. Men and woman are doing it every day. But there must be no flaws in the faith—no inner wavering, no tongue in the cheek.

Test the truth of this theory by your own experience.

Why does that uncouth, badly educated fellow succeed in a line of work where hundreds of handsomer, clever men have failed? This is why—he has FAITH. He is sold on himself and on his job. The other men split their interests and their energy—he cleaves to the one point, and he puts himself across, despite his handicap.

Why is that unattractive girl succeeding in the office in spite of the competition of her prettier sisters? She, too, has FAITH. She knows what she wants and she's going after it. They scatter their shots.

FAITH WORKS—WHAT MIGHT YOU NOT ACHIEVE IF YOU REALLY BELIEVE IN YOURSELF AND YOUR WORK?

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Nothing is more simple than greatness; indeed, to be simple is to be great.—Emerson

In jealousy there is more self-love than love.—La Rochefoucauld.

The use of traveling is to regulate imagination by reality, and, instead of thinking how things may be, to see them as they are.—Johnson.

The noblest character is stained by the addition of pride.—Claudianus.

To pray together, in whatever tongue or ritual, is the most tender brotherhood of hope and sympathy that man can contract in this life.—Sigel.

"We trust, sir, that God is on our side." "It is more important to know that we are on God's side."—Lincoln.

The love of praise, howe'er conceal'd by art,
Reigns more or less, and glows, in every heart. —Young.

Who is so deaf as he that will not hear?—Herbert.

He who prays and labors lifts his heart to God with his hands.—St. Bernard.

Humility is to make a right estimate of one's self. It is no humility for a man to think less of himself than he ought, though it might raise puzzle him to do that.—Spurgeon.

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—Every fashionable suburban village around New York has to face a quota of social gate crashers during the summer season. Almost invariably they are those with suddenly acquired wealth and their methods are ciru usy.

They buy or lease the finest estates, command the gaudiest yachts and "throw" the most expensive parties. In such centers there is only one group that "belongs," and the leader is usually one whose ancestors had something or other to do with the Mayflower.

Fortunes are spent every season by those on the outside trying to reach the inside. And the futility is always obvious. Not one in a thousand makes the grade. Yet season after season the climbers return for more punishment.

The social lightweights are, however, a boon to tradesmen, for they buy extravagantly to entertain lavishly. There is the tragic story of one family that prepared a huge lawn fete this summer. Many thousands were spent upon decorations and music.

Several days before the affair the R. S. V. P.'s began to arrive. Most of them were regrets, and at the last moment the few who accepted were notified the fete had been called off. The mortified hostess is now in a sanitarium.

It is in these small communities of social strife so many "Poison Pen" episodes take place. Private detective agencies reap a harvest from those who seek to acquire "inside" salacious scandal about intimate lives of those who snubbed them.

There are times when alloining estates reach the bitterness of the old-time "spite fence" disputes. It is a battle of gold against aristocracy. New York social warfare is bad enough, but when removed to the open spaces it is pretty terrible.

A GROUCHY old and myopic gentleman drew up in front of an art gallery window to inspect one of these symbolical pictures of a starfish making love to a spray of seaweed or something. He gazed awhile, adjusted his glasses and looked again. It was evidently too much, for in a sort of rage he drew back his cane and smashed the window. More gallantry such as this would be an elegant thing for art.

EACH season there is a reigning "naughtiest woman in New York"—a sort of queen in the cosmopolitan but shabby world of Broadway. She is invited everywhere, shocks the blase, and for some reason or other quickly passes out of the picture. She is usually known as the Countess or Duchess of Soandso, and dresses for the part. Her bathing costumes is the scantiest and her decollete frock the decolletest. Nobody seems to know where she came from and few care whither she goes, so long as she flash.

A FEW years in New York makes one tolerant of little slights that so often offend in a smaller city. People here do not see or hear from "intimate friends" for months, but there is no thought of negligence. Other petty frictions of a small town are not nearly so marked. There is a fine understanding of the value of time and of distance that is pleasant. When old friends meet after a long period, their attitude is that of those who have lived in widely separated cities. No apology is necessary for the long period between meeting. A New Yorker understands.

THE New Yorker is a pretty good sport in another way. He is rarely jealous of the success of his neighbor, and that quality is not so pronounced in many smaller cities.

AND right about here is an appropriate spot to drag in an observation of this very morning. A gentleman made a wild reach for his windblown hat as it careened into a sewer opening. As he stood there looking silly a clerk in a hat store across the street rushed to him with another hat to wear home. That is in a few inches of what the efficiency boys call "service plus."

"Fletcherizing"

Not All It Once Was Believed to Be

Many are the popular pseudo-scientific superstitions that go down under the test of exact science.

Fletcherizing seems to be one of them. Dr. Harold G. O. Holck, an instructor of physiology at the University of Chicago, has announced the results of alternate Fletcherizing and careless, natural chewing over a period of four and a half years.

He reports that, during the Fletcherizing interval, his calory intake dropped, he lost thirty pounds, his muscular endurance dropped, likewise his basal metabolism, and his efficiency upon the typewriter. The only thing that improved was his ability to solve chess problems.

Most of us grownups can remember the vogue of a supermastication, forty-five strokes to every mouthful. It is nice to learn that we did not shorten, but probably lengthened, our lives by not joining the cult.

No doubt gluttony can do more harm than Fletcherism. Between the two in a golden mean which reasonable men discover by experience.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELS.

TOO soon the lesser gifts will go,
A brief leaves from life's great tree, when first chill winds of Autumn blow in stirring minstrelsy.
The little joys will drop away, the little loves will pass with every flying day by day as fades September grass. But I can see them all drift out upon a vagrant wind, and still with faith untouched by doubt know life is wholly kind. If only I may clasp and keep the gift of gratitude, I shall not fail to sense life's deep and all-enfolding good!
